HENRY FORD tells British reporters: "The last time I was in England I bought a Rolls Royce, and what's more, I took it home with me."

Much delight among proud Britons. Ford, diplomat, did not add that he and his son, Edsel, bought every make o car in the world, having a special department to examine such cars, test and submit them to every possible kind of abuse, to discover any good new idea in them.

Edsel Ford lately was racing around in a German Mercedes car, built to do 120 miles an hour.

Captain Thaustegeen, Norwegian whaler, after three weeks in the Antarctic region, returns with 48,000 barrels of whale oil worth $2,500,000.

"Thar she blows," in the Norwegian language, rang out a dozen times a day.

Wonderfully prolific is nature, filling even the cold oceans with whales. And much amazed would those whales be if they could understand that they are now on their way to Procter & Gamble's to be made into ivory soap, which floats, as the poor whales once did.

The greatest lawyers, capitalists, politicians are proud to escort the late Chauncey Depew to his grave. The nation wishes him happiness in the next world as he knew it in this.

Nobody went to the grave of Jean Jacques Rousseau when he was buried on the Isle des Pins.

Napoleon, looking at that lonely grave, said that if there had been no Jean Jacques Rousseau there would have been no Napoleon, and perhaps it would have been just as well for the world if neither had lived.

To have fine pall bearers at your funeral, make only friends. To be remembered, make well-chosen enemies.

The Fascisti propose to abolish hand shaking for health reasons. "No use exchanging microbes every time two men meet."

Indiscriminate handshaking by men and kissing by women might be eliminated by common grounds altogether.

Handshaking originated when a man held out his hand to show it held no knife. That's gone by. The thing is done more neatly now with the aid of lawyers.

George Washington did not believe in handshaking and stood at receptions with his hands behind his back and bowed.

The Rev. George G. Jeffries baptized 1000 in Albert Hall, London, with 10,000 looking on. The baptized men wore white flannels, the women white nightgowns, and it was no simple old-fashioned baptizing. Flashlights and floodlights, limelight and loud speakers gave "class" to the event.

What our century lacks in simple faith we make up for, with megaphones.

Governor Smith uses his veto with common sense.

Kind-hearted people passed a law forbidding the clipping of dogs' ears. "Governor Smith won't veto that kind law," said they, but he did veto it.

Dogs fight, ears clipped or unclipped. Clipping fighting dogs' ears saves them trouble and pain. If you were a dog you would have the sensitive outer part of your ears clipped once for all rather than have them bitten a hundred times.

Nuremberg and all Germany celebrated with enthusiasm the 400th anniversary of Albrecht Duerer's death.

Duerer never painted "a nude lady descending a staircase" looking like a corkscrew. But his art will outlive the trash of this and the last century. He worked quickly, as genius usually does. He went out to the emperor, approaching his city, took one look at his face, hurried back, and had an excellent portrait finished when the emperor arrived.

Omaha, with telegraph and telephone wires down, would have been cut off from the world

7 FEET ABOVE NORMAL

Other Vermont Streams Over Their Banks and Threatening Railways and Roads

Districts of Vermont and New Hampshire, and communities along the Connecticut river in Massachusetts and Connecticut, faced a new flood peril last night.

Rising waters were due to a premature spring thaw caused by the abnormal warm weather of the past three days.

At Burlington, Vt., where the Winooski river is narrow and the adjoining business and residential sections are on low land, the water already had overflowed the banks of that stream last night, flooding streets and cellars.

Water in the stream had risen from six to seven feet and was continuing to rise.

SNOW STILL MELTING

With the snow on the mountains still melting and an expected rain fall today, predicted by the weather bureau, there was every indication last night that considerable damage might result within the next few days.

The banks of the Mississquoi river at Richford, Vt., were overflowing with the water in the river higher last night than at any time for several years with the exception of last November. Water covered the railroad tracks and made many highways impassable.

At Burlington, Vt., where the army engineers Friday night removed the pontoon bridge across the Winooski river to the town of Winooski, which they had erected following the November flood, water was reported last night to be seven feet above normal.

ST. JOHNSBURY IN PERIL

St. Johnsbury, which still bears scars of the November flood, was almost isolated by high water last night. All railroads, except the Maine Central on the east, were forced to suspend operation because of washouts. Bridges at Inwood and North Danville were expected to fall before the rising waters.

At Linden, nine miles from St. Johnsbury, there was a 50-foot washout along the bed of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. A 60-foot washout was reported between Wolcott and Marshall, and at Greenboro

DOCTOR'S FLIGHT BALKED BY FOG

Fog yesterday blocked efforts of Dr. Roy H. Gilpatrick of 27 Bay State rd to reach an emergency case at Nantucket by airplane.

Answering a call to a woman patient the doctor with his wife and Pilot Ralph Wickford of Boston Airport Corporation left the airport at 4 p. m. yesterday.

They reached Martha's Vineyard and attempted a landing, but were enveloped in fog which they battled for almost two hours before they were forced back to the Boston Airport.

Undaunted by this experience, the physician on reaching the airport, started over the road for Woods Hole in his auto, accompanied by Mrs. Gilpatrick and Mrs. C. F. Bearse.

The physician arranged with coast guardsmen to transport him to his patient by water. Both Mrs. Gilpatrick and Mrs. Bearse will remain at Woods Hole until the doctor's return late today.

Representative William P. Hickey of South Boston yesterday filed with the clerk of the House an order conferring the name of Gallivan boulevard on the Southern artery, so-called.

The order follows: "That, in memory of the late James A. ## JEANNE EAGELS TO SAIL FOR REST IN EUROPE

New York, April 7 (INS)—JEANNE EAGELS, the actress whom the Actors' Equity Association has suspended from the American stage until Sept. 1 1929, and fined about $3600, plans to sail for Europe on Wednesday and "forget her troubles."

"I'm sure everything will come out all right," she said tonight. "I don't know what counter action I shall take against Equity. Right now I'm chiefly interested in getting away to Europe and enjoying a rest."

On Broadway the feeling is general that the Equity in its action was making an example of Miss Eagels.

New York, April 7—Peekskill village today gave Chauncey M. Depew, its most distinguished son, to the tomb.

The body of the venerable citizen who died Thursday in his New York home was placed in a granite mausoleum at Hillside Cemetery.

Mrs. May Palmer Depew, the widow, was unable to accompany the cortege to the burial ground. She did not attend either the services at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church where leaders of American life had attended the beginning of the last chapter of the career of their noted countryman.

The funeral of Chauncey M. Depew contained elements in keeping with his long and striking career in that it held contrasts typical of his life.

First there was the service in hushed vaulted St. Thomas, with church dignitaries officiating and a throng of more leaders in the many professions and businesses touched by the man in his nearly 94 years of life standing with their heads bowed.

However, at Peekskill village there were only the hundred villagers and the mourning members of the Depew family.

In the city where Depew moved with amiable efficiency, the bier was surrounded by men and women of circumstances. At the grave were the neighbors, the sons and grandsons of Depew's playmates.

IN SIMPLE CASKET

In the naive of lofty St. Thomas with the far-carrying voices of Bishops Manning and Stires intoning prayers, the coffin was mantled by a blanket of deep red roses on which lay a cross of lilies of the valley.

But when that floral robe was lifted at the tomb in Peekskill it revealed a coffin of the most severe simplicity. It was no showy bronze funereal chest. It was covered in black broadcloth. It bore a silver plate, on which was engraved the name of the man and four democratic biography which is within the reach of every son of Adam—the dates of birth and death.

This solemn, silent gesture—the lifting gently of the covering of flowers—made it seem as if the genial old man had outlived his days and that Chauncey Depew were again revealing the simplicity, the graceful repulsion of gaudy gesture, that was indeed his way of moving among his fellow men.

Apart from the obvious respect paid his memory by giants of industry and leaders of thought in the

3 HIT-AND-RUN VICTIMS, 1 DEAD

One man was killed and two others seriously injured by "hit-and-run" motorists in Boston about midnight. One driver was taken into custody and held as a suspicious person when police found him driving a machine with a smashed headlight.

Antoni LaRossi of Garden st., West End, was killed. He was crossing Neponset ave. in West Roxbury when he was run down by a machine which sped away without stopping.

Charles R. McEachern, 20, of Hesson st., Brookline, was struck by a speeding taxicab while crossing Boylston st. at Audubon Circle. He suffered concussion of the brain and a broken left leg. His name is on the danger list at the McLeod Hospital.

The third man, Gelphus Thibodeau, 56, of 72 Acton st., Back Bay, was hit at Massachusetts ave. and Boylston st. by a roadster which continued on its way.

Soon after LaRossi was killed, the Jamaica Plain police detained a man who admitted his machine had been in an accident. He claimed he stopped his car and returned to the scene but could find nothing. Then, he said, he continued on his way.

When the report that he had been taken into custody reached police headquarters, Inspector Harry Pierce of the homicide squad and Assistant Dist. Atty. William McDonald went to the West Roxbury police station to question him.

Folk and Woodbury Counties Send Set of Delegates for Each Candidate

Des Moines, Ia., April 7 (AP) — Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York gained the favor of Iowa Democrats, in county conventions today, over Edwin T. Meredith, former Secretary of Agriculture.

Governor Smith had a commanding lead over Meredith, in instructed delegates to the state convention here April 20 when reports were compiled from 90 of the 99 counties, which have 1245 of the 1332 delegates to the state convention.

Five of the counties reported, having 22 delegates, had to postpone their convention because of impassable roads following last night's storms.

Ten counties, Polk and Woodbury, put the selection of delegates up to the state convention by choosing two sets of delegates, one for Smith the other for Meredith.

The delegate votes in the 90 counties heard from, counting ties, elections or indecisions only for the candidates named, follows: Smith, 533; Meredith, 90; uninstructed, 488; contested, 81; elections postponed, 52; total, 1245.

This followed a disagreement over the seating of county convention delegates assigned respectively to Smith and Meredith in separate precinct conventions.

At Cedar Rapids Smith got the Linn county delegation of 46. The Smith forces developed overwhelming support for Sen. James A. Reed, of Missouri.

Some wished Reed to be given a complimentary vote in the convention, before the delegation lined up behind Smith, but they were voted down. Reed formerly lived here.

At Iowa City, Johnson county's delegation of 26 was instructed for Smith.

Dallas, Tex., April 7 (AP)—Governor Dan Moody, in an address today repeated that he was a strong anti-Smithite, vouched for harmony and pointed out again he would support the party nominee when the majority speaks.

"The situation calls for a man who is a political evangelist to go across the country and bring the people to the realization that good government has fallen into the hands of predatory wealth and privilege and that crime and horrible betrayal of the masses of the people hold high carnival in Washington," he said.

"We have a galaxy of men in the party who can do this," he continued, but he saw nothing "political" in the candidacy of Governor Smith that suggests that he fits into this situation. Nothing in his

15 WITNESSES SUBPOENAED IN PROSECUTION OF MRS. KNAPP

Albany, N. Y., April 7.

FIFTEEN witnesses, including Robert Moses, secretary of state, have been subpoenaed to appear next Tuesday before the special grand jury which indicted Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, on six counts of fraud in connection with disbursement of the $1,200,000 1925 census fund.

The prosecution indicated it expected to secure at least four more indictments against the former secretary of state.

There was a retort at the Capitol tonight that indictments would be sought against other persons who figured in the census scandal.

Out under $6000 bail, Mrs. Knapp is expected to return here from Syracuse on Tuesday to remain until after her trial, which is expected to start the latter part of this month.

Petitioners Had Protested the Transfer of Diocesan Funds

Rome, April 7 (INS)—Pope Pius XI today excommunicated from the Catholic church, E. J. Daignault, editor of a Catholic newspaper printed at Woonsocket, Rhode Island, and other signers of a communication denouncing Bishop Hickey of Providence, R. I.

Moreover, the papal ban forbids Catholics reading such newspapers as La Sentinelle, which, it is alleged, conducted agitations against Bishop Hickey.

It is understood here that the "communication of denunciation" was introduced as a court proceeding.

First Decree of Kind in N. E., Says Bishop

Providence, R. I., April 7—Bishop William A. Hickey of the Providence diocese, R. I., today issued a statement on the excommunication of Atty. Elphege J. Daignault and his followers, communicates of the Catholic churches here, who had opposed the bishop's parochial school policy.

"This was expected," was the Bishop Hickey's only comment.

Then he added that this was the first example in the history of its kind in the Catholic church in New England, and in the history of the Providence diocese.

Bishop Hickey pointed out that a dispensation from the ban can be granted only by the Holy See.

Newspaper dispatches had come from Rome earlier in the day, but although Bishop Hickey confirmed the excommunication he had not as yet received from the Vatican the official documents, which are on their way.

Daignault, who besides being engaged as a lawyer, is editor of the French newspaper, La Sentinelle, printed in Woonsocket. His name heads the list of those expelled from the church by Pope Pius. He is at present in Rome on the Vatican to plead his cause. On a recent visit to Rome he failed to see the Pope on account of illness.

APPEALED TO COURT.

The order of expulsion, issued in Rome today by the Congregation of the Holy Council of the Vatican affects French Catholics in several Rhode Island towns. Daignault has been the undisputed leader of those objecting to Bishop Hickey's policy of devoting the funds of parochial schools some of the funds of French churches.

On February 12, 1927, Daignault and other lay members of 10 French Catholic churches in Rhode Island filed suit in Providence County Superior Court against Bishop Hickey, Monsignor Peter E. Gilday and trustees of parish funds was enacted and an accounting demanded. The allegations were directed solely against the bishop and his stewardship, the Very Rev. Peter E. Blessing.

BISHOP SUSTAINED

It was charged that funds of the French churches were diverted to meeting the deficit of the diocesan publication, "The Visitor," and that other funds had gone to the building of Marcelle Academy in Providence. Judge Willard B. Tanner decided in favor of the bishop, who maintained it was proper to make what use he thought proper of the funds.

Dissatisfied with this reversal, Daignault and his associates appealed to the Supreme Court, where his plea is now pending. Meanwhile, Bishop Hickey several weeks ago was given permission from Rome to

TRUCK KILLS BOY THAT CAR SPARES

Joan T. Linehan, 7, saved his life in front of an auto in Market st., Lynn, last night only to lose it a moment later under the wheels of a heavy truck.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. David D. Linehan, 31 Waterford st., Lynn, had passed between two parked autos. He was running, police said. When he had gone a few feet, Lester Waitt, of Kirkland st., Lynn, driving an auto, saw him in time to jam on his brakes. Little Johnny's life was spared.

Then a truck, driven by Lawrence K. Lubie, 27, of Webster st., Lynn, coming from the opposite direction, struck and killed the boy.

School Fund Drive Led to R. I. Church Controversy

QUOTA GIVEN TO EACH PARISH IN THE DIOCESE

Treasuries Drawn on in Event of Failure to Raise Assessment

DAIGNAULT LEADS PROTEST

Bishop Hickey Makes Clear That He Showed No Racial Favoritism

The Daignault-Bishop Hickey controversy arose late in 1925, when the bishop of Providence announced a $1,000,000 "drive" for the erection and equipment of Catholic high schools throughout the diocese.

Each parish was assessed a certain sum of money and in case this amount was not raised the parish was called upon to make up the difference from its own treasury.

Certain of the French parishes failed to raise their quotas. Some demurred against taking funds from the parish treasury. One pastor refused to do so.

Daignault, lawyer, editor, and chief of the Association Canado-American, took up the protest and entered into a controversy with the bishop. He finally appealed to the Rota at Rome, which body answered that the appeal did not come within its jurisdiction. The sacred congregation at Rome took the appeal under consideration, however, and decided that inasmuch as what Mr. Daignault wanted was the assurance of protection against possible excommunication—in the event that he brought his bishop into the courts—his petition must be denied.

APPEALED TO DELEGATES

The attorney next appealed to the Apostolic Delegate at Washington and in November, 1926, received from Archbishop Fumasoni-Bondi the reply that:

"It is a matter of surprise to me that, while not professing to be a loyal Catholic, you are an active participant in this agitation against your Bishop, especially in view of the fact that the Holy See rejected your recourse.

"It is high time that you abandoned your un-Catholic agitation and in the spirit of true and practical loyalty give your Bishop the support he deserves in furthering the cause of our holy faith."

In July last Bishop Hickey in a public statement called attention to the fact that there are 80,000 French Catholics in his diocese.

But there are 60,000 Italians, he said, 2000 Poles, 20,000 Portuguese, and in all more than 120,000 English-speaking Catholics. There also he declared, "no discrimination, no preference for one over any other nationality."

QUOTES ST. PAUL'S LETTER

On many occasions the bishop has publicly expressed his love for the French people and their language, which, he says, no one has made his own. In order to prove that there was a "lack of French priests in Rhode Island," he has answered that there are priests for whom he has been unable to find parishes.

But "contradictions within the Church" are nothing new, the Bishop of Providence has recited, going back to the letter written to Titus by St. Paul, nearly 2000 years ago, in which Paul described a certain group as disobedient and gave instructions with regard to how to deal with such contradictions as come from within.

The so-called Daignault movement has been lively, not alone in Rhode Island but in the districts of Worcester (New Hampshire) and in the Worcester region of the diocese of Springfield.

In New Hampshire, as it happens, the Bishop is a Frenchman. Daignault on any of his followers—that State, according to Adolphe Robert of Manchester, is the stronghold of the Association Canado-American in the future is "not enough French in the future to support schools." The New Hampshire law of 1918 specifies that the teaching of all subjects in elementary schools shall be in English.

HELD IN NAME OF BISHOP

Robert Gallienne spoke with Daignault last fall before a mass meeting in Manchester—is that much of the fuss aroused by the teaching of religion and foreign language, the religious instruction should be given in English?

Another item of contention the Daignault followers have brought forward is New Hampshire's ruling directly upon the Rhode Island controversy because that controversy would be impossible in the Granite State.

In New Hampshire, all church property of whatever description is held in the name of the "Roman Catholic Bishop of Manchester," as a corporation sole. There are no such personages as parish trustees or parish boards. The parish priest is the administrator.

From the continued appearance of Daignault's name in newspaper headlines the impression may have gone abroad that the French-speaking Catholics of Rhode Island are arraigned en masse against their spiritual leader.

The fact appears to be the direct opposite.

The Association Canado-American, of which Daignault is general president, is not the foremost of Franco-American organizations, that dignity belonging to L'Union St. Jean Baptiste, formed nearly 30 years ago as the champion of Franco-American rights and the leader of that element of the population in its struggle for political, social and professional recognition.

With very few exceptions, the French clergy have rallied around their bishop. One, however, the Rev. M. W. A. Prince, was relieved of his pastorate at Woonsocket and late last year went to Rome. Another, at Central Falls, was suspended for 30 days in June last. When priests have appeared at Daignault meetings they have usually been priests from Massachusetts, one of the most active of these being the Rev. Louis E. Raymond, of Sharon Heights.

According to the Rev. Napoleon Plasse, of the Church of St. Louis de Gonzague at Woonsocket, the opponents of the bishop "should be looked upon with pity."

"When their complaint was rejected at Rome," Father Plasse told his own parishioners more than a year ago, "that was the end of it. They should not have had recourse to another authority."

NO ONE FORCED TO STAY

Daignault's most recent attack has taken the form of advice to his followers not to give to the church.

"Don't give to the church," he said in February of this year, and he promised that in two months we will witness the disappearance of our bishop."

He was answered by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Duaray of the Church of the Precious Blood, Woonsocket, who said:

"The Church does not force anyone to remain a member in spite of himself, but she asks all those who proclaim themselves Catholics, who wish to partake of the sacraments and receive the graces and benefits which she gives to children, to be submissive to legitimate authority, to accept the doctrine which she teaches and to obey the directions which are given for the salvation of all.

"For those who do not, laymen have arrogated to themselves the right to contradict the doctrine of the Church, to pervert minds and to cast doubts upon the authority of legitimate pastors.

"The time has come to separate the tares from the wheat.

"Let those who are with the Church remain in the Church; let the others be known and put aside, so that their isolation will give them a chance to think things over and make obvious to them the danger of their obstinacy and the malice of their revolt."

GUIDED ONLY BY DUTY

Monsignor Duaray is dean of the French Canadian clergy of Rhode Island.

"His highness the Bishop of Providence," declared this oldest of the French priests, "is making a last effort to bring back to the Providence way of thought and obedience those unfortunates who have been misguided by a false doctrine. It is repellant to me to use the power inherent in his episcopal character but, faced with obstinacy, he will have to do his duty."

"Excommunication" is defined by the authorities as "a censure excluding a person from the communion of the faithful."

There are two classes of excommunicated persons; the "vitandi" to be avoided, and the "tolerati" to be tolerated. The only difference is in the matter of intercourse that the rest of the faithful may have with them.

deal in any way he chose with the recalcitrants. A month ago Bishop Hickey, from the pulpit of the Cathedral here made an earnest plea to all Catholics to be loyal and faithful, and not to be lead astray.

SOME MAY ESCAPE BAN

There is a question whether all those named on the list will come under the Vatican ban since some of the original followers of Daignault resigned after Bishop Hickey's pulpit appeal. Their places were taken by others, however.

In St. John the Baptist Church, Pawtucket, Arthur Belanger and Le Marre and Ratty resigned but their places were filled by Michael Savard, Euclide Hebert, Narcisse Lamoroux and Jerry Breault.

Onesiphore Lefevre resigned from the committee of Notre Dame des Victories Church in Woonsocket, and his place was taken by Ovila Mougenal. Albert Duval and Arthur Belanger withdrew from the petitioners of St. Matthew's Church, Central Falls, and were replaced by J. Piamondon, Joseph Gosselin and Joseph Gagnon.

Vatican Closes Down Pro-Jewish Organ

By Universal Service Special Radio.

Rome, April 7—A decree closing down the Catholic organ known as the Friends of Israel was issued today from the Vatican.

The organ was formed two years ago to aid Jews against pogroms in Central Europe.

The decree prohibits Catholics to write or publish pamphlets supporting the association.

Army of 30,000 to Referee Chicago Vote

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—An Easter Sunday armistice tonight silenced the big bertillas in Illinois' hottest primary campaign while the candidate-cannoneers along the political battlefront retreated to the home lines trenches to dig in for the battle of the ballots Tuesday.

The political cannonading was muffled and the active campaign of all factions was stopped, except for last minute political sniping, but on its heels came the new army that will referee next Tuesday's fight.

In Chicago alone this army numbered nearly 30,000 and besides 13,000 precinct officials, included 5000 policemen, 8000 watchers and challengers of various factions and 2000 independent watchers representing non-political civic organizations attempting to insure freedom of expression at the polls.

DROPS DEAD WHILE HORSEBACK RIDING

New York, April 7—Harold Rothschild, 48, president of the Commonwealth Ice Co., dropped dead from his horse in Central Park today. Death was attributed to heart disease.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

With interesting ceremonies at the Boston navy yard yesterday afternoon, Rear Admr. Philip Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District, and his aide, Comdr. Leland Jordan, jr., were initiated to honorary membership in Troop 19, Boy Scouts of America, of Medford.

Troops 3, 7 and 19 officers attended the exercises near the bandstand.

As the Scouts stood at attention Rear Admiral Andrews and Comdr. Jordan received the Tenderfoot Test. Both officers also were given badges of membership. At the close the ceremony a score of Scouts formed a line and presented each of the new members with specimens of their handiwork, including small wooden airplanes, bookholders, pen and pencil holders, letter openers, canes, bow and arrow and other articles in wood and metal craft.

Scout Master Herbert K. Noble initiated Rear Admiral Andrews and Comdr. Jordan by administering the Scout oath and law. Deputy Commr. and Scout Master Thompson then bestowed the Tenderfoot pin on them.

CLAD IN PAJAMAS, FLEES ASYLUM WITH FIRE TRUCK

Stonington, Ct., April 7 (AP)—RESIDENTS of this town thought it, they were witnessing the climax of a movie comedy today when a fire engine driven by a man clad only in pajamas roared through the streets pursued by half a dozen uniformed men on motorcycles.

They thought differently, however, when, as the fire engine slowed to a halt in heavy traffic, one of the uniformed men jumped from his machine, clambered up in the driver's seat and clasped handcuffs on the driver.

The driver was an inmate of a state insane asylum at Norwich. He had run off with the hospital's fire truck. The uniformed men were state officers who had picked up the trail of the fire engine outside Norwich.

Both were returned to the asylum little the worse for their experience.

FLIERS HUNT 2 BANDITS WHO SHOT TROOPER

Men Believed Hemmed In Near Webster in Dense Wooded Region

Webster, April 7 — Airplanes, carrying armed troopers, swept over a great stretch of wooded country today seeking bandits who slew Connecticut State Patrolman Irving Nelson.

Sighting, from lofty wing, three men in the Brandon hill woods here, Lieut. Ralph C. Barrows from the Worcester airport, swung down over the treetops to land.

He and the trooper with him detained the trio on suspicion. But after other troopers had checked up the stories told by them, they were released.

At Warren, three men who had fled into a forest at approach of State Patrol Corp. Harold McGinnis of the North Brookfield Barracks, were arrested. After examination by Springfield and Connecticut officers, they were freed of suspicion of being the bandits. But they were held at North Brookfield pending a check by Boston police of their addresses.

DESCRIPTION OF BANDITS

Tonight, throughout Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut, state motor patrols were doubled, with instructions to halt all autos resembling the one used by the bandit slayers of the state trooper at Pomfret.

The bandits were two in number, police announced here. The driver of the death auto was about 28, weighed 150 pounds, and wore a dark blue double-breasted coat and gray felt hat.

His companion was about the same age, of darker complexion, and wore a dark double-breasted coat and gray felt hat.

In the belief that the bandits might have fled into the woods, 500 men searched a five-mile stretch of forest in Webster, Charlton and Dudley all of today. All were armed.

On the highways were troopers with pistols, rifles and machine guns. Overhead airplanes scouted. A system of signalling was arranged so that the posse might know when and where a plane had sighted men in the woods.

Reports from several sources that three autos were observed to have gone hastily into Webster from the airplane call and posting of machine guns.

ONE SUSPECT ARRESTED.

At noon today one man was taken in custody as a suspect on the outskirts of the woods, but when taken to the local police station he explained himself satisfactorily and was released.

Meanwhile, as a result of the bandit hunt, Joseph Krupinski, 43, a Polish farmer, was battling with death in Worcester City Hospital. Krupinski has a bullet in his chest, laid down by Prosecutor Lloyd G. Buchers of Hartford, Ct., or Trooper Joseph Vandrish of Green's Corner, Connecticut, Saturday.

The two troopers saw the farmer come out of his barn and run across an open space on his farm. When he failed to stop at their command they both fired and Krupinski fell.

It was explained by the troopers that they believed Krupinski to be one of the bandits who had been hiding in the woods. Search as it was in Webster, not far from the Dudley farm, that the bandits' car was found Saturday.

Detective P. Frank Carroll of the Worcester police detective bureau made inquiries today at various points found on the windshield, door glass and other parts of the abandoned touring automobile. The car property of Francis J. Higgins of Worcester, according to a tip to Mayor O'Hara of that city, was stolen Thursday from in front of his home.

In the check-up of cars parked here and those of Worcester were inclined to think that the bandits and Worcester had been tipped to the fact that after the gun fight in Springfield they went south, but received by a broken road that leads directly to Worcester.

FRIEDA HEMPEL MAY SETTLE SUIT

New York, April 7 (INS)—Frieda Hempel, operatic soprano, and August Heckscher, 79, philanthropist, may settle their difficulties out of court.

It was reported today that Heckscher, in an effort to end the litigation brought against him by Miss Hempel, has offered to settle $18,000 a year on her for life.

Miss Hempel had claimed that Hackscher originally agreed to pay her $48,000 a year under the terms of a novel contract which she cites in her action against Heckscher, trial of which is pending in Supreme Court.

In return for the $48,000 annually the opera singer said she bound herself not to accept any engagement to "sing for hire" that would take her from New York city for more than two days at a time. Also that she was to sing for charity or community service at any time the aged millionaire requested.

She has not appeared in concert since April, 1926, when the verbal contract is said to have been made.

"The obligation of Mr. Heckscher is one that is well-founded in morals and law," Miss Hempel has asserted. "When he failed to fulfill the obligation the only recourse was in law."

It was learned today that Miss Hempel's counsel has the offer of $18,000 a year under consideration.

Miss Hempel divorced her former husband, William R. Kahn, millionaire silk manufacturer, in Paris, in July, 1926. Subsequently she was reported engaged to Heckscher. He also was reported to have given her a $1,000,000 pearl necklace.

POPE TO WARN WORLD AGAINST DICTATORSHIP

Encyclical Expected to Be Directed Against Hyper-Nationalism

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND, (Copyright, 1928 by Universal Service)

Rome, April 7—A papal encyclical directed against hyper-nationalism throughout the world is one the eve of being issued by the Vatican.

According to the prominent cardinal who is my authority and who is confirmed in diplomatic circles in close touch with the Vatican, it will in effect be a drive by the Pope against such super-nationalism as is reflected by fascism in Italy, the Ku Klux Klan in America, Action Francaise in France, Ludendorf racialists in Germany and similar organizations in other countries.

In the papal document the Pope will admonish cardinals, bishops and priests of the Catholic church throughout the world to preach and work against this form of nationalism as an enemy not only of the church but of peace.

The encyclical is said now to be in the hands of those who are editing it. According to diplomatic circles, which evidently know something of its contents already, it consists of 32 articles or paragraphs, dealing with the relations of the church and the state on one hand and the relations of the state to the individual on the other.

The Pope is understood to make a strong point against the efforts of hypernational states and organizations completely to absorb the individual citizen by taking from him his private rights and reducing him to a mere zero or pawn in the state structure, as in the case of Fascism in Italy and communism in Russia.

Result: An impaired digestion.

Army to Plant Trees and Beautify New England Forts

THOUSANDS TO BE SET OUT ON 12 ISLANDS

Co-operation in Reforestation Programs One of Reasons for the Move

BOSTON HARBOR TO GAIN

Money in the 1st Corps Area Treasury Sufficient to Provide Numerous Trees

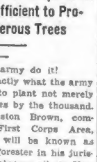
PLANT a tree—

Let the army do it!

And this is exactly what the army is about to do; to plant not merely one tree but trees by the thousand.

Maj.-Gen. Preston Brown, commanding the First Corps Area, henceforth also will be known as chief ranger or forester in his jurisdiction which embraces all six New England states.

And by his orders every fort and garrison, now for the most part denuded of trees, will be planted with stalwart young soldiers of the soil. Every fort will become a place of beauty instead of a barren stretch of land.



General Brown

Beginning this week thousands of young trees, mostly four-year-olds, will begin to be delivered to the 16 forts on the 12 islands under General Brown's command, stretching from Rhode Island to Vermont. The colonels commanding the various forts each will personally supervise the tree planting in his own domain.

Beauty One Object

"And this," General Brown told the Boston Sunday Advertiser yesterday, "is being done for two reasons. First, it is intended to beautify the forts which at present are by no means things of beauty; and, second, it is intended to cooperate in the reforestation programs being carried out by the federal government and the individual states.")

Down on the islands embracing the forts in Boston harbor army spades are ready to turn over the soil and rugged soldiers will be the planters.

"I am confident," said Gen. Brown, "that there will be no hitch in the rather ambitious tree program that we have planted. Our only difficulty, it seems, is lack of manpower rather limited funds. But what money we had available has been sent to the commanding officers of the various forts and they will do the rest.

"We have the men and we have the trees, and we have the place to put the trees, and the only thing we have been stinted in so far is the trees. We feared we wouldn't have enough to go round. We are looking hopefully toward an otherwise kind Congress to let us have a little money for our tree program."

The idea of planting trees on the mostly bare forts first came to Gen. Brown when on a visit to the army situations in Boston harbor.

"Plant the Forts"

General Brown communicated with the forestry departments of the six New England states and received much encouragement when he explained how he intended to "plant the forts." But that did not provide trees. The question was not only where to get the trees, but how to get them.

Then into the picture stepped Lieut.-Col. Edmund A. Buchanan, assistant chief of staff for supply at the Army Base, South Boston. Col. Buchanan is a tree lover. He has orchards in Texas where he was for years stationed.

Col. Buchanan discovered that the amount of money available in the First Corps Area treasury would be sufficient to provide numerous trees. In fact, thousands of trees—trees at $2 a thousand!

So that every $2 of the army funds available will go a long way.

"We need trees on our forts to beautify them—why should not our forts be beautiful?" Col. Buchanan remarked in the office of Gen. Brown yesterday.

Chances in Boston

"You know," he said, "we old army fellows, after serving a score of years or so, have two ideals. One is to make a garden and the other is to have a chicken farm! Some men try to go in for both.

"But transfers in the service come so frequently nowadays that the men have little opportunity to make a garden or start a chicken farm. In the old days beautifying a post was the ambition and the task of the post commander and he usually took care of that.

"Now we are emphasizing the importance of reforestation over beautification, but you cannot have the one without the other.

"Take Ft. Standish in Boston harbor, for instance This fort on Lovell Island is depressingly bare. With judicious tree planting Ft. Standish could be made a garden spot. Let the army do it."

'Miss Columbia,' Mural Model, Takes Husband

Miss Agnes McNamara a Bride for a Year

Announces Marriage, Leaves for Portsmouth, N. H., Her New Residence

"MISS COLUMBIA" is a bride. The girl whose face and figure are immortalized on the walls of the State House in Boston gave her friends a surprise the other day when she quietly announced that her name was no longer Miss Agnes McNamara, but had been Mrs. Walter Gray for a year.

With this announcement, she departed for Portsmouth, N. H., where she and her husband have a home at 185 Raleigh Way.

Mrs. Gray was the non-professional model for the symbolic figure of Columbia in the large mural painting by Richard Andrew, Boston artist. Mr. Andrew was commissioned to paint a memorial to the 104th Infantry, the colors of which were decorated by General Passaga of the French army for gallantry in action in the World War.

The regiment won its honors at the Battle of Apremont, and was the first American regiment to be so decorated.

To Find a Model

When it fell to the lot of Mr. Andrew to paint the picture, his first task was to find a model for Columbia. It was necessary to secure a young woman whose face and figure typified the highest ideal of American beauty, and also one who had the histrionic talent to assume the required facial expression.

He wished to depict Columbia rushing forward with arms upraised, holding a sword which she is offering to her stricken sister republic, France. Behind her was to float the flag dotted with gold stars, symbolizing her song who made the supreme sacrifice.

Columbia must be not only a superb womanly figure, of noble proportions and queenly carriage, but must bear upon her features the stamp of magnanimity and sacrifice, of loyalty to a great cause, and of generous grief for her fallen children.

It seemed an impossible task. But through a brother artist who was acquainted with the former Miss McNamara, Mr. Andrew was presented to her. She fulfilled the most exacting requirements. The fact that she was not a professional model was an advantage in the eyes of the artist.

The American Type

"The American type of beauty," Mr. Andrew told the Boston Sunday Advertiser, "is peculiar unto itself. It combines the best features of the Greek ideals but is not quite so heavy as the Venus. It is more the Diana type, athletic and vigorous, at the same time classic and womanly.

"Our natural preference as Americans, when not interfered with by the imported ideas and tastes of foreign nations, are for good proportions. This is shown by our Colonial houses and silver; all quite simple in line, but substantial—chaste and symmetrical."

The young woman admitted to the Boston Sunday Advertiser that she was "thrilled" to be chosen for the model for Columbia.

"I was awfully pleased to be selected," she said. "I never posed before and probably never shall again. Mr. Andrew has painted a portrait of me, and that is all. It seems wonderful to realize that the figure of Columbia in Mr. Andrew's mural painting is mine and will always be on the walls of the State House. I can hardly believe it."

She Weighs 120 Pounds

The original "Columbia" weighs just 120 pounds. The canvas on which her likeness appears, with its heavy oils, and as it stood in a heavy frame, with the frame mounting, weighed more than she did.

In his painting, the artist chose the moment when Gen. Passaga was affixing the decoration of the French government to the regimental colors.

The picture of the regiment itself, with its soldiers in uniform, is finished by two panels. One shows the figure of Columbia, described above; the other shows the symbolic figure of France offering a wreath to the American soldiers, and at her side the kneeling figure of Joan of Arc.

SOCIETY LASSIES AID GIRL SCOUTS

Prominent Boston and Brookline society women donned bright yellow smocks and worked busily yesterday at an Easter sale at the home of Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague, 199 Commonwealth ave. The affair, which was designated "Selling the Seven Seas with the Girl Scouts" was a benefit for that organization.

A group of Junior League girls, headed by Miss Minna Lindsay of Southboro, at the cigarette, cake and candy tables, included the Misses Elizabeth Heath, Stella and Helga Gray, and Alice DeNormandie.

In addition to the sale, which included flowers, cards and fruits, there was an interesting exhibition of Girl Scout work and dolls presented to the delegates who attended the International Conference at Geneva, dressed in the Scout uniforms of their representative countries. This feature was in charge of Mrs. Edward E. Mc. wife of the British consul general, assisted by Mrs. Arthur W. Hartt.

Among society women assisting at the benefit sale were Mrs. Horace Fraser and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Fraser, Mrs. Charles H. Adams, Mrs. Lyon Weyburn, Mrs. Horace Binney, Mrs. Loring Under wood, Mrs. Andrew Marshall, Mrs. Henry Lapham, Mrs. Edward Nash, Mrs. Oliver Hall, Mrs. Bryan Perrine, Mrs. Henry T. Baldwin, Mrs. Charles Collens and Mrs. Rene Paine.

The Easter sale was directed by Mrs. William A. Copeland, chairman of the committee on arrangements, assisted by Mrs. George Lewis, Jr., Mrs. Irving Marshall, Mrs. John C. Dewey, Jr., Mrs. Horace Allen, Mrs. Walter B. Kendall, Miss Elizabeth C. Leland, Mrs. Robert M. Burnett, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly and Miss Edith Mor.

Rodolfo Pacifucci, 22, of Yale st., Medford, operator of the machine, was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Eve Wears Trousers in the A. M.

Paris, April 7.

THE trouser dress has arrived, with models for morning and evening wear.

The softly feminine period dress, with flowing draperies, suddenly opens from waist to hem when the wearer moves, to reveal full trousers of silver tissue gathered at the ankle.

Other evening models are slim and sheath-like, the trouser portion ending well above the knees. Onto these are tacked draperies of transparent material that prolong the legs to the knees.

Then there are the short knickers open at the knee, over which the briefest of skirts are worn.

GUNMAN STEALS $20 IN STORE

A well dressed bandit held up Dennis Sheehan, manager of a First National Store at 587 Columbus ave., with a gun last night and robbed him of $20.

Sheehan told police he was alone in the store at the time. The bandit, he said, first emptied the cash register and then ordered Sheehan to produce his own cash. The manager emptied his pockets, but had nothing of value.

15-Year-Old Boy Seizes Woman's Handbag

A boy of about 15 pushed Mrs. Bertha Horwitz of 101 Greenwood st., Dorchester, to the ground and then took her handbag last night, near her home. The bag contained $17 and a latchkey.

Mrs. Horwitz told police the boy then fled down Greenwood st. and disappeared up the Boston & Albany Railroad tracks.

Woman Robbed of Purse on Way Home

While on her way home from a neighborhood store late last night, Mrs. Rose Dimond of 20 Homestead st., Roxbury, was robbed of her purse, containing $2.50.

The theft occurred near the corner of Walnut and Columbia aves., Mrs. Dimond described the thief as a young man.

SIXTY LODGERS IN LYNN ESCAPE FIRE

Sixty lodgers, one of them a woman, last night fled to the street in a shrieking mass when fire forced them to vacate Glendon Hall in Lynn. The building is a four-story wooden structure at Union and School sts.

The ground floor is occupied by stores, and it was in one of these, a restaurant operated by William Y. Hutchinson, that the fire started. Damage was about $500.

Postmaster Held in Theft

Alfred N. Andrews, 31, postmaster at Tyngsboro for four years, was held in $500 for the federal grand jury by United States Commissioner Jeremy yesterday. He pleaded not guilty to embezzlement of $628 and gave bail.

GIRL'S DEATH PROBE SHIFTS TO HOPKINTON

Police Investigate Theory Miss Stewart Spent Last Night Alive at Summer Camp

Discovery of the fact that a bed in one of the rooms of the Bob White camp, an exclusive summer colony for boys on the outskirts of Hopkinton, had been occupied, evidently by a woman, caused a sudden shifting of the police investigation of the murder of Miss Marguerite Stewart to that town.

Police now are investigating the possibility that the slain girl, whose body was found on the Cambridge turnpike, Concord, on March 30, might have spent the previous night at the boys' camp.

Since discovery of the girl's body the police have been baffled as to where the murder might have been committed, and the finding of the open camp, showing it had been occupied, leads police to believe it was there the girl spent the night.

Examination of the bed revealed it had been occupied by a woman, for beside the bed were shoe marks, as if the woman had removed her shoes while sitting on the edge of the bed. Chief of Police Charles W. McNair said he found imprints of a rubber heel beside the bed and in a wet spot in the kitchen.

Without bail, under indictment charging him with the murder of Miss Stewart, Frederick Hinman Knowlton of Framingham exhibited no dismay yesterday.

Shortly after his protestation of innocence, Knowlton's principal concern was that he might be permitted a visit from his parents today. He was informed his father would be notified that he might visit the prisoner in East Cambridge jail.

John P. Driscoll, counsel for Knowlton, had a four-hour conference with his client yesterday. Knowlton now claims, according to his attorney, that he can prove a perfect alibi, with his wife as the principal alibi witness.

COUNSEL IS CONFIDENT.

"I talked with Knowlton four hours," said Atty. Driscoll, "and I can say that I have never seen any man more adamant in his firm insistence that he is innocent of any and all involvement in the crime. I am now working on certain phases of Knowlton's interview with a view to seeing him again next week."

It is understood Knowlton's child and its mother have left Framingham temporarily. The wife has already declared that she can prove an alibi for her husband.

State police, co-operating with the family of the slain school supervisor, have been combing the registers of Boston hotels on the theory that the girl may have put up at a Boston hotel the evening before the tragedy. Motorists accustomed to using the Cambridge turnpike in Concord are also being sought by police in the hope they may first someone who saw the murder car early in the morning of a week ago last Friday.

TWO NEW WITNESSES.

Two new witnesses, whose identity is known to the police, but whose addresses remain concealed, are in prospect of being brought into the case. It is intimated these witnesses may be used by the State in alibi rebuttal in an effort to obtain conviction in Concord in the company of a young woman shortly before Miss Stewart's body, still warm, was discovered by the roadside.

Miss Stewart's poppy-colored hat has thus far baffled the searchers for evidence and exhibits in the case, but it was not left the Beverly School for Deaf Mutes, where she was employed as a supervisor, as is known to have been the last bit of finery appearing, but no trace of the hat has been found in the vicinity of the spot where the girl was killed or cast away.

The state's chain of evidence is still minus the murder weapon which detectives are inclined to think was a concealed weapon, possibly an automobile tool.

COUNSEL REBUKED AT BLAST HEARING

A spat enlivened the continued hearing yesterday at the State House on complaints of blasting operations of the Lynn Sand & Stone Co.

Counsel for the company, Alfred F. Foote, who is hearing the appeal of the company from a refusal of Fire Marshal George C. Neal to renew a blasting permit, reprimanded Richard L. Sisk, counsel for the complainants, for referring to the commissioner had heard the complaint prior to its coming before him. Mr. Sisk insisted that he had not and that he intended to imply there had been any impropriety on the commissioner's part.

LYNN GIRL VISITS HUB, DISAPPEARS

Police yesterday were asked to search for Barbara Gowring, 16, of 57 Andrew st., Lynn, who disappeared Friday while in a Boston department store. Local police say Miss Ann Gowring is employed.

The girl had $3 when she disappeared, is five feet, two inches tall, weighs 96 pounds, has light hair and wore a red hat, brown coat with fur collar, pencil-colored dress and tan shoes and stockings.

HUB MAN TO FLY FROM KANSAS CITY

Fred Pereira, operations manager, and Adolph M. Backstrom, pilot of the Bay State Flying Service, left for Kansas City yesterday with Alcott C. Payson of Portland, Me., one of the M. I. T. Flying Club pilots, to bring back two new American Eagles from the factory there.

Payson has bought a plane for his own use.

COOLIDGE VETO FORECAST IF TAX CUT PLANS FAIL

International News Service

Washington, April 7—Hints of a presidential veto for the new tax reduction bill, if Congress authorizes a slash in excess of the limit set by the treasury, were heard on Capitol Hill today as the Senate Financial Committee ran into a new delay in consideration of the measure.

The bill came to the Senate from the House carrying a $250,000,000 reduction, which was authorized in the face of a $1,750,000,000 legislative program that would call for increase of from $50,000,000 to $500,000,000 in Government expenditures next year. The treasury fixed the surplus for 1929 at $250,000,000 which could easily be wiped out by the new legislative program without any reduction of taxes.

EXCEEDS HOUSE LIMIT

The President was reported to feel that it would be poor national policy for the government to operate at a loss—a policy that would drive any private corporation into the bankruptcy courts. A deficit, it was pointed out, would require an increase in taxes for the following year or an abandonment of some federal projects, including large expenditures.

Fixing such a threat, it was reliably reported, that the President will veto any tax bill exceeding the treasury's limit. In the face of this threat, the Democratic minority on the finance committee continued its plans to force a finish fight on a $300,000,000 reduction bill. This would exceed the House limit by approximately $11,000,000, although many reductions would vary in the two plans.

WOULD EXERCISE VETO

An alternative, which the President may exercise, would be to vets much of Congress' legislative program should it be enacted. The President thus far has expressed approval of the Boulder Dam bill, but has voiced opposition to both the farm relief and the flood control bills in their present forms. There were reports current that both these latter measures would be vetoed.

The delay encountered by the committee was an announcement from the United States Chamber of Commerce that it would be unable to appear Monday for a hearing on its demand for a $300,000,000 tax slash. The chamber agreed to appear next Friday, when it will give support to the Democratic drive for a greater tax reduction than that recommended by the Treasury.

MAN WHO BEAT GIRL KEPT HIS SUICIDE THREAT

Somerville Tragedy Due to Unrequited Love for Chum's Sister

The hopeless love of a young giant for the pretty sister of his chum was revealed as the cause of a tragedy in the Somerville home of Miss Mildred Sockerlund, 24, instructor in beauty culture in Boston.

As a result of his unrequited love John Sivanis, 23, of North East Harbor, Me., is dead, and the girl who thought the love-smitten youth was joking when he told her "I'll kill myself if I can't have you," lies injured in the Somerville hospital having apparently been beaten with the butt end of a revolver.

The girl was discharged from the hospital last night and sent to her home.

John C. Savage, father of the dead man, and another son, came from North Stonington, Conn., to Somerville last night and conferred with the police. He will confer with the chief of police in Bangor, claim the body and take it back to his home in Maine for burial.

According to the girl's father who, awakened by his daughter's screams early yesterday, ran to her bedroom to find her struggling with young Savage, she too would have been dead if the youth's plans had been carried through.

LIFE PAYS FOR THREAT

The father, Paul A. Seckendorf, grabbed his daughter from the arms of the youth and pulled her, half-fainting from the room. As they crossed the threshold three shots rang out. The lovesick young giant, who stood six feet, three inches tall, had made good his threat: "If I can't have you I'll kill myself."

Young Savage, who was employed at a Jamaicaplain power plant, had been an overnight guest at the Seckendorf home, where for three years he had occasionally visited. He was called "Pal" by Mildred's brothers, Howard and Arthur.

Describing what happened in the early morning hours of yesterday, the injured girl said:

"I was awakened by a blow on the head. John was standing over my bed. I could see blood trickling down my face. John grabbed me and I struggled against him.

MADE NO RESISTANCE

"I screamed for my father and my brothers. I was beginning to get faint when I saw dad run into the room. That's about all I can remember."

The father, a Somerville produce merchant, carried the story forward.

"I saw Mildred struggling with John. I couldn't imagine what had happened, but I knew John must have gone crazy. He certainly would have killed her if I hadn't got there when I did. I grabbed Mildred from him. He didn't resist me. He could have thrown me out of the window if he wanted to, But he didn't even say a word. As I led Mildred out of the room I heard two or three shots."

According to members of the family Savage went to the Seckendorf home Friday morning. He had the day off at the Lawrence plant. He was to stay over the week-end.

HAD TARGET PRACTICE

He had brought a revolver with him from Lawrence. He and one of Mildred's brothers engaged in some target practice with the revolver in the cellar of the Seckendorf home Friday. No significance was attached to his bringing the revolver with him.

Young Savage rarely saw Mildred during his visits to her home. She was usually out with other young friends. Savage never spoke of his affection for the girl to the other members of her family.

A year ago, however, it was disclosed, the youth had asked Mildred to wed him. She quickly turned down his proposal. "I'll kill myself if I can't have you" he gravely told her. She laughed. "That's what they all say."

She considered his threat a joke and the matter ended. But apparently he had been a victim of jealous brooding over since, which drove him to desperation.

This desperation is believed to have been brought to a climax when Mildred went out with friends Friday evening, ignoring young Savage's presence in the house.

A MEAN DISPOSITION

The Weather Man showed his true disposition by hanging out a bulletin admonishing the girls that Easter Sunday and Easter millinery are not unlikely to be dampened a bit early today by "light showers."

It looks like rain.

The Weather Man was kind enough to say that the showers—a mere sprinkling—may disappear before you are up and out and on your way to church.

But the harm had been done.

To go on with the story, tomorrow will be fair but considerably cooler.

The thermometer climbed high again yesterday and at its peak the mercury stood at 78, a point it had reached only once before on the 7th day of April. That was in 1909, when some of our speediest motorists and fastest dawncers were mere babbles.

LENTEN BRIDE 20TH CENTURY CLUB SPEAKER

On Program as Miss Mayer, She Is Introduced as Mrs. Alfred B. Carter

A Lenten bride was speaker yesterday at the weekly luncheon of the Twentieth Century Club.

Announced on the program as Miss Frances B. Mayer, extension secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, she was introduced by President J. P. Monroe as Mrs. Alfred Bradley Carter.

The marriage of the former Miss Mayer to Attorney Carter, counsel for the society she represents, took place March 30, after the club programs had been printed.

Canon B. H. Streeter of Hereford Cathedral and of Queen's College, Oxford University, England, also spoke and Miss Helen H. Rice of Boston gave five original monologues.

In spite of the present controversy now raging over the prayer book of the Church of England, disestablishment of that church is not likely, according to Canon Streeter. He quoted an old English university head who declared that a crisis came in church affairs about every 10 years, but added that he was beginning to think the church would survive him.

REPRESENTS COMPROMISE

The prayer book in its adapted form represents a compromise between the extreme high church and evangelical factions, the speaker said.

"No one knows what the House of Commons is going to do with it," said Canon Streeter. "It, however, it is thrown out by the House of Commons, probably lots of people will start using it. I don't think disestablishment will follow, partly because no one really wants disestablishment of the church, and partly because it would take a long while to accomplish.

"Most people think of the established church as the result of a single law. This is not so. The church was there long before the state, and is intricately involved with it. People talk about chaos. Well, we get on very well with chaos. If you call it religious liberty, that gives it a different aspect."

A few years ago, the speaker said, he was considered one of the leading heretics of his church. Since his latest two or three books, he added, he has enjoyed a certain "aroma of sanctity."

"A MODERN CINDERELLA"

"Properly, I ought to die now," he said, "for I cannot trust myself not to say or do something within the next few years that will cause that aroma to fade away."

Mrs. Carter's subject was "A Modern Cinderella." She cited figures showing that last year her society handled more than 13,000 cases.

She showed slides of children before and after coming under the society's care, and made an eloquent plea for the interest of the community in neglected waifs.

Miss Howe's monologues included: "The French Lesson," "An Afternoon Sail," "Fifth Grade Graduation Exercises," "A Cape Cod Cottage for Sale" and "The College Girl Submits Her Poems."

Her characterizations were brilliant and varied and were much applauded.

HEALER ACCUSED IN GIRL'S DEATH

Washington, April 7 (INS)—Charging that Louis W. Hoffman, physiotherapist, deliberately broke the neck of Miss Eleanor Lehman to hide an attempt at illegal surgery, acting Dist-Atty Leo A. Rover will seek an indictment for murder in the first degree next week.

Miss Lehman died several weeks ago in Hoffman's office after he had "manipulated" her neck for "headache."

Hoffman was held at the time by the coroner's jury on a technical charge of manslaughter, and was released on bail.

His bondsmen surrendered him when the district attorney's office announced a more serious charge would be made, following a "confession" by Mrs. Dolores Monroe, who took the young woman to Hoffman's office for treatment.

COMPANIONATE SEPARATION IS LATEST VOGUE

Virginia Fair and Jack Dougherty of Filmland Admit They're Trying It

Hollywood April 7 (INS)—If there is such a thing as a "companionate separation," Virginia Brown Fair, screen actress, and her husband, Jack Dougherty, also well known in cinema circles and former husband of Barbara La Marr, are trying it, they admitted today.

They are experimenting with separation without the legal machinery which usually accompanies admitted marital difficulties, Dougherty said. In answer to reports of a contemplated divorce.

"We're trying this experimental separation to see whether or not we want really to get a divorce or stay married," he said.

He added that his wife is living with her mother and will continue to do so for at least a month—or until they "find out about things, one way or the other."

Dougherty also admitted that insignificant things caused all the difficulty.

"I did not like a certain hat of which my wife was especially fond," he said, "and she didn't like my choice in ties, for instance. It was things like this and other equally unimportant things that caused the trouble.

"But we think that perhaps a separation will solve all the trouble. We see each other frequently, my wife and I—but not across the breakfast table, for instance. And now, when we begin to argue about something, one or the other can get up and leave.

"Personally, I think that 'too much marriage' is a common social ailment and can be remedied, usually, by a good dose of 'separation.'"

FORD'S WAYSIDE INN MENACED BY FOREST FIRE

More Than 500 Acres of Land Burned Over Between Framingham and Marlboro

Henry Ford's historic Wayside Inn at Sudbury yesterday was threatened by a forest fire which burned over between 500 and 600 acres of timber and brush lands from Framingham to near the Marlboro line.

A shift in the wind to the southeast held the danger off from the famous inn and incidentally checked the fire when it appeared ready to leap over the old post road, on the other side of which stands the inn.

Starting at 8:30 in the morning at a point near the residence of Henry S. Dennison, head of the Dennison Mfg. Co. of Framingham, the flames, which it is thought sprang from a smouldering cigarette stub sped on toward Sudbury.

Part of valuable timber land owned by Ford was burned over. The flames had burned their way over Nobscot mountain.

LOOKOUT GIVES ALARM

Up in the observation tower of the State Department of Forestry, the alert lookout saw the flames and clouds of smoke. He sent word to State Fire Warden Crowe in Weathero and at the same time turned in an alarm.

The apparatus of the State Forestry Department was soon in action in an attempt to thwart the flames but the fight was a losing one. Framingham and Sudbury then sent fire apparatus and these were later augmented by Henry Ford's private fire-fighting force of eight men.

Meanwhile 250 Boy Scouts and Scout leaders from the Newton district who were spending the week-end on the estate given them by Horace W. Orr of Newton, were called into action. With poles and tree limbs the boys were kept busy beating out the flames as they approached.

Some of the boys climbed high into 40-foot trees and with their Scout knives ripped burning bark from the sun dried trees. They were in charge of Scout Executive L. A. Bruce and Chief Ranger of Scouts D. K. Ingraham. More than an acre of the Scout camp was burned over despite their efforts.

GRAVES THREATENED

Ancient chestnut trees which stood on the Scout camping land suffered from the flames, which also threatened the eight graves which repose within a fence on the old Orr estate. The graves are marked by headstones bearing dates from 1735 to 1792.

Another grave that was threatened was that of Buckley Howe, one of Sudbury's earliest settlers, whose old homestead was recently taken over by Henry Ford as a boys' technical school. Several huge pine trees in this section were seared by the flames.

Other properties burned over included those of Moses H. Ellis and John Tarmain.

After fighting the flames for three hours, it was believed the fire had been mastered.

Then it suddenly broke out afresh.

BOYS CALLED FROM THEATER

Eighty Boy Scouts from the camp who were in Boston attending a morning performance at a theater were notified by telephone to lose no time in getting back to camp.

These four score scouts were conveyed to Newton Highlands in autos and busses and met by Scout leaders, who armed every boy with a shovel, a brush or a broom. Then they were driven to the scene of the fire.

State Fire Warden Crowe paid tribute last night to the work of the boys, and said that without their help the fire would not have been extinguished as early as 5 p. m. when the last sparks died.

During the day Arlington firemen fought eight threatening brush fires, and in Concord three grass fires were started along the Boston & Maine tracks by sparks from locomotives.

In Lexington there were 11 fires during the day, which swept over 200 acres in various parts of that town. For a time a fire in the woods off Wood st. threatened buildings on the farm of Ernest K. Ballard.

REJECTS PLEA OF WOMAN WHO CHANGED MIND

Reveals Bootleg Ex-Husband Doing Well; Wants Alimony Increased

Providence, April 7—A woman's prerogative of changing her mind may work out satisfactorily for her in general—but Mrs. Fannie Koenig of Woonsocket discovered today that it is not always so good in court.

What Mrs. Koenig did reveal in her testimony and charges, however, was that bootlegging is a lucrative profession in Woonsocket.

Last January Mrs. Koenig was granted a divorce from Gustave Koenig, also of Woonsocket, and was given custody of a daughter and was awarded $15 a week for the support of the child.

Today she came before Chief Justice Tanner of Superior Court, asking that the decree be modified to include $50 a week for her own support.

The wife explained that her husband is a bootlegger in Woonsocket and prospers thereby. She was accompanied by a bank clerk who showed that Koenig's deposits in the particular bank since last November approximate $8000.

To the judge she displayed a deed for a $12,000 house Koenig gave her, a diamond pin worth $900 and three diamond rings appraised at $900, $600 and $400. And also, before the divorce, she said, Koenig used to give her about $65 a week for her support.

Her counsel, Samson Nathanson, explained that Mrs. Koenig had been so eager to obtain the divorce that she was willing at the time to waive alimony. However, he said, she had now changed her mind.

Judge Tanner, unmindful of the popularly-supposed woman's right, denied her petition.

FORD IN LONDON ONLY 24 HOURS ALREADY BUSY

Auto Manufacturer Horrifies Hotel Folk by Breakfasting at 8 A. M.

London, April 7 (INS)—Although insisting that his visit to England is primarily for pleasure, Henry Ford was at work today 24 hours after he landed at Southampton.

Accompanied by Mrs. Ford, he created a sensation in the dining room of the Carlton Hotel by appearing for breakfast at 8 o'clock. The Carlton does not ordinarily serve breakfast until after 9 o'clock, but a chef was hastily summoned and breakfast provided for the Fords in an otherwise deserted dining room.

At 9 o'clock Ford entered a limousine and motored to Shenfield, Essex, where he owns property. The day was spent in an inspection of his estate, consisting of some 300 acres acquired three years ago.

There were reports in financial quarters today that Ford planned to erect a factory at Dagenham for the building of motor cars and tractors, but he declined to discuss his plans for expansion in Great Britain.

The principal Ford plant in England is located at Manchester and Ford will inspect it next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford have received scores of invitations to social functions but are accepting few of these. On Wednesday they will attend a dinner given in their honor by the American Society in London, this being the only semi-public function so far arranged.

BIG G. O. P. WAR FOLLOWS CLASH ON FARM BILL

Attitude of President Coolidge May Defeat Hoover, Warns McNary

By JOHN T. LAMBERT.
Universal Service.

Washington, April 7—Guided by the bitter struggle for farm relief the presidential battle between Herbert Hoover and former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois became a major offensive today.

Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon served notice upon President Coolidge that the contest for the revised McNary-Haugen farm relief plan will be carried on in Congress regardless of the President's attitude and despite its effect upon the presidential election.

L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, Republican leader of the farm bloc forces in the House, issued an analysis of the presidential situation in which he asserted that Hoover would be roundly defeated by Gov. Al Smith because of native bitterness in western farm areas toward the administration.

Rep. Walter H. Newton of Minnesota, a Hoover supporter, replied in effect that Dickinson was indulging in idle talk.

COOLIDGE UNYIELDING.

McNary is understood to have found the President absolutely unyielding in his opposition to the equalization fee in the modified farm bill.

"We've got to fight it out," he said when leaving the White House. "I have yielded as much as I possibly can in order to meet the objections raised by the President in his veto of the last bill. By yielding so much I have, in fact, lost the support of such progressives as Brookhart and Blaine."

Dickinson's analysis, to the surprise of regular Republicans, conceded Smith New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey and Rhode Island over both Hoover and Lowden.

In the event of Hoover's nomination, Smith would also carry the Dakotas, Montana, Nebraska, Wisconsin and other agricultural states because of the farmers' discontent, Dickinson said, while Illinois and Indiana would become battle grounds.

FIGURING ON VOTES

Conceding the latter states to Smith, he figured the electoral college vote would be Smith 328, Hoover 204. Lowden would carry all the agricultural West and border states and would whip Smith 322 to 209, according to Dickinson. To which Mr. Newton replied that Dickinson did his own candidate, Lowden, a poor turn by conceding that he could not carry some of the ordinarily strong Republican states of the East.

Political statisticians today figured that 300 delegates have been chosen to the Republican national convention, and they are divided about one-third for Hoover, one-third for Lowden and one-third unpledged.

MRS. HALL, WIDOW OF PASTOR, SUED

Trenton, N. J., April 7—An echo of the trial of Mrs. Frances Noel Hall on a charge of killing her husband and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills, was heard today in a suit for $50,000 against the widow, A. M. Blattman, a fingerprint expert, in a complaint filed in the United States district court, says he never was paid for his services.

He was retained by the defence, Blattman says, to prove that the print on the card said to have been found near the slain vector's body was not that of Willie Stevens, Mrs. Hall's eccentric brother.

Blattman never was called to testify, but claims he did much work in behalf of the defendants.

FULLER'S AIDE IN CLUTCHES OF DAN CUPID

Herman A. MacDonald Far Too Busy Now to Write Any More Letters

Herman A. MacDonald's letter to Congressman Allen T. Treadway continued to be the subject of heated discussion yesterday and last night, but Mr. MacDonald had no part in it.

The gifted author, whose Letter to Frank Goodwin Taking a Slap at Mexico will be remembered, disappeared early in the day from his desk in Governor Fuller's office at the State House.

Where he went was not stated but when the evening papers appeared the State House correspondents drew their own conclusions.

Early in the afternoon Mrs. Maria L. Young, formerly of Manchester, N. H., but now of Brookline, announced the engagement of her daughter, Marion Sarah Young, to the private secretary to the Governor.

WEDDING DATE NOT SLATED

The date of the wedding was not stated, but it was taken for granted that from now on Capt. MacDonald will be so busy with his own affairs that writers of letters to the Governor may be thankful if they receive answers to the general effect that "your favor of the umteenth inst. has been called to the attention of His Excellency the Governor, who will be pleased to give it his early attention. With best wishes."

He may, of course, slip in a mere mention of two for of "Fuller for President and No Second Place Stuff," but that will be no more than any other young fellow might do with his mind occupied by carpenters, dressmakers, timetables, tailors and furniture salesmen.

Everybody at the State House hopes for a June wedding. They want to bring Herman's mind back to Beacon Hill, keep it away from Mexico and off the White House. The boy needs rest.

His letter to Congressman Treadway, whose Massachusetts district is near New York and close to Connecticut, chided the former President of the State Senate for boosting Congressman Tilson of Connecticut for Vice-President.

In the same letter the Secretary to the Governor took a wallop at Senator Gillett, for mentioning Moses of New Hampshire for second place.

TREADWAY RED-HOT

Congressman Treadway was red-hot about the young swain's "impertinence." He reported him to Governor Fuller, who said in writing that the boy "must be in love."

The Governor knew something, as Mrs. Young's announcement proved.

The fight drifted from the State House yesterday when Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Cape Ann horned in.

Andrew is the original "Fuller for President" man.

He struck out at Treadway, who had written that it will be a long time before the G. O. P. turns to Massachusetts again.

Congressman Andrew thought that, having done so well under Coolidge, the party and the country might very well be decided to come up this way again. He wondered how Allen Treadway could have said anything so reasonably different.

Whereupon, Congressman Treadway retired from the field. There was nothing else to do.

The governor laughed.

It's nobody's business what the governor's secretary was doing but he wasn't writing letters.

KIDNAP VICTIM IS RESCUED

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—Held captive for a week by a band of kidnapers as hostage for a $100,000 ransom, Thomas Gaynor, motor car dealer and hotel owner, was rescued by Chicago detectives today. Seven men were arrested.

The rescue of the gang's wealthy victim was made in a drab two-room summer cottage at Crystal Lake, 40 miles northwest of Chicago. Detectives found Gaynor under the armed guard of two kidnapers.

Gaynor, unshaven and unkempt after his week as the gang's prisoner, almost collapsed when he realized he was safe. He said the kidnapers kept him in complete darkness all week.

The gang seized him, by told police, last Sunday afternoon just as he left his motor car sales rooms.

The police got on the trail of the gang late last night after the kidnapers had made overtures to Gaynor's partner, James McCormick.

DIVORCE PARTY LEADS TO DEATH OF BOSTON GIRL

Hazel Redish, Actress, Plays Stellar Role in Last Tragic Drama

DIES OF POISON LIQUOR

Two Boston Men Held as Result for Violation of Prohibition Law

Hazel E. Redish, who under the stage name of Nancy Fayre danced and sang her way into the hearts of thousands of Bostonians and New Yorkers, is dead.

On the records of Dedham Emergency hospital, where she died yesterday, is the notation, "Alcoholic poisoning—acute."

The last drama in which the beautiful girl played the stellar role had the usual settings—gin, gay companions and autos.

Friday was a day of joy for the little actress, for she had just received notice from the clerk of the Northampton Probate Court that her union to Wallace Redish, business man and member of the Northampton Chamber of Commerce, had been dissolved.

Gleefully did the girl receive the news of her freedom from the bonds of matrimony, and to friends she confided, "I'm going to throw a party that will be a party."

It was the first of Boston's "divorce parties," but instead of bringing freedom, it brought death.

PEARSON HELD

Police were early on the job of looking into the "divorce party." Albert Pearson, 42, of Beacon st., Boston, was arrested for violation of the liquor law.

After hearing Pearson's story Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick Doyle ordered the arrest of Antonio Brando of Pheasant st., West Roxbury. Pearson told police he bought liquor from Brando.

Police raided Brando's home and seized a quantity of liquor.

Medical Examiner Hogdon of Norfolk County reported there were no marks of violence on Mrs. Redish's body. He said he had sent the contents of the woman's stomach for analysis and expected a report tomorrow.

The three students, who voluntarily visited headquarters, were allowed to go after telling their story.

Now State chemists are analyzing the liquor, which the police say was poisoned. If that proves true, a more serious charge probably will be made against Pearson.

On the fatal joy ride Nancy Fayre, for that was the name by which the young Mrs. Redish was best known, was accompanied by Gladys H. Brown, 21, her hostess of Weld st., Roxbury, also an actress, and Technology students, said to be John J. Hartz, Richard French and Thomas Rosborough.

The party got under way with the son of a wealthy contractor of Roxbury, George Muir. He left on the midnight train for New York.

OFF ON JOY RIDE.

The three students and the two girls saw Muir off at the South Station and started on a joy ride.

After some time one of the students noticed that Nancy was strangely quiet. The joy-riders began looking for a doctor. Soon they stopped at the home of Dr. Arthur Worthington, School st., Dedham. He ordered that the sick girl be taken to Dedham Emergency Hospital, following immediately himself.

When the physician arrived at the hospital Hazel Redish was dead.

WILBUR SCORES FOES OF BIGGER NAVY PROGRAM

Secretary in Two Omaha Speeches Defends Self From Propaganda

Omaha, Neb., April 7 (AP)—In two speeches here today, Secretary Wilbur defended the navy against thrusts of "organized propaganda" and maintained his contention of the need for an American naval building program.

He spoke tonight before the American Legion Post, asserting that no reasonable man or nation can doubt America's sincere purpose to limit naval armament. Earlier in the day he told the Chamber of Commerce that "a peaceful, neutral" navy was essential to the prosperity of every citizen because of its continuous interrupted overseas commerce.

In the first address Mr. Wilbur attacked propagandists who, he said, were undermining national defense, and he recalled that President Coolidge said in his last message to Congress that "we would provide for our needs regardless of persuasion or agitation for or against an adequate navy."

BRITAIN BUILDING BIG

Tonight the secretary denied that the naval building program was provocative.

"Great Britain," he said, "has declared to us her purpose to far exceed this program. Certainly not Japan, for she has already exceeded the 5-5-3 ratio, and both know of our sincere desire to limit naval armament as evidenced at the Washington conference in 1922, in several acts of Congress calling for a new conference, from our efforts at Geneva, and the act itself, authorizing the ships, which empowers the president to cease building whenever a conference is called for disarmament."

Observing that replacement of the capital ships must begin after 1931, when the Washington conference treaty expires, the secretary said it was desirable to accomplish the proposed cruiser, aircraft and submarine construction before the heavier burden of battleship and destroyer construction comes.

The reason for the five-year program of 25 cruisers, 10 light cruisers, five aircraft carriers and 35 submarines, he said, was to develop in an orderly fashion a well rounded out and effective navy at a minimum of expense, with the construction spread out to avoid a heavy expenditure at one time.

80 PER CENT TO LABOR

Eighty per cent of the cost of the $740,000,000 original program would be paid to American labor and the money in large measure would remain in the country, he declared.

"We are paying as much for prosperity as for ships," he added, "and we have prosperity partly because we are willing to pay for it by paying high wages.

"We could buy the ships abroad for about one-half what they will cost if we pay our money to American workmen, but we want American ships, designed and built by Americans, and manned and operated by Americans."

The $740,000,000 program put forth by the Navy Department has been materially reduced by the House, which approved construction of 15 cruisers and two airplane carriers.

Companionate Marriage Flayed

Opposed by Rev. Dr. A. T. Brooks

Motivated by the Philosophy of Pleasure, Says Dudley St. Baptist Church Pastor

BOSTON'S "Marrying Parson," the Rev. Dr. Arthur T. Brooks of the Dudley Street Baptist Church, is unalterably opposed to the so-called "companionate marriage." He tells his congregation so in a way that leaves no doubt as to his convictions.

"Sophisticated pretense to the contrary," Dr. Brooks says, "the only possible basis on which one could believe in companionate marriage is worldly pleasure without regard for social responsibility.

"Lacking both blood bond and the spiritual inspiration which is the glory of true marriage, the moral gravity of such an agreement as companionate marriage is zero.

"To Christian of any faith could ever countenance such a scheme, for then such a pact is entered into the participants turn their backs on the teachings of Jesus Christ."

Foundation of Society

Dr. Brooks believes that "marriage for pleasure" presents a challenge not only to the church, but to the State as well; that the repudiation of all such schemes is a requirement of patriotism as well as of Christianity.

"Marriage and family life," he went on to say, "have always been recognized as the foundation of civilized society. They are the very basis of our national stability, and no patriot will aim a blow at that foundation.

"From the beginning of Christian civilization, marriage has always been regarded a life partnership.

"We can go back to the time of our first parentage—to one of the earliest chapters in the opening book of the Bible—for the divine dictum which settles the whole proposition, namely: 'Therefore, shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife and they shall be one.' (Genesis, second chapter, 24th verse.)

"That which is one is not severable. A man and woman, living together as husband and wife according to the Divine plan, shall forever remain husband and wife.

"In the early ministry of Jesus, he said: 'From the beginning of Creation, male and female made He them. For this cause, shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave to his wife, and the twain shall become one flesh, so that they are no more twain but one flesh. What, therefore, God hath joined together let no man put asunder.'

"Philosophy of Pleasure"

"Companionate marriage schemes are motivated by the philosophy of pleasure. In the philosophy of the moral man and woman every force strives for the higher ideals of life. These ideals make for the constructive continuity of the community of nations.

"If we should allow companionate marriages, to legitimatize debasement of the highest social function simply because that debasement is persisted in by a few, why not legalize theft because some men cannot resist stealing, why not legalize motor speeding because some men will speed? Somehow why not subvert all legal restraints on personal desires? There is not a law that is not broken covertly by some one."

80 WITNESSES SUMMONED IN SINCLAIR CASE

Oil Man's Trial for Conspiracy to Defraud Government Opens This Week

Washington, April 7 (AP) — The story of the formation of the Continental Trading Co., which government prosecutors sought to bring out at previous trials of Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, may not be touched upon during the Sinclair trial to open Monday.

The oil man, it was learned today, will admit he gave former Secretary of the Interior Fall $25,000, part in bonds of the Continental Co., purchased with oil profits, and will insist that the payment was for onethird interest in Fall's Tres Ritos Cattle & Land Co. in New Mexico.

BRIBE IS ALLEGED

Sinclair will maintain the source of the bonds is not material to the government charge of conspiring to defraud the government in the Teapot Dome oil lease. The prosecution contends Sinclair gave the bonds to Fall as a bribe after the latter signed the lease on the naval oil reserve.

That the Government is ready to go into the Continental deal, if necessary, is indicated by the calling of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, as a witness. Stewart, with Sinclair, James E. O'Neill and H. M. Blackmer, interrogated to the last A. A. Humphries of Denver the performance of the contract through which the Continental purchased 32,000,000 barrels of oil from him. Stewart was instructed to produce documents concerning formation of the Continental, which the Senate oil committee has as yet failed to get into its record.

WILBUR, WORK CALLED

However, the story of Malon T. Eberhart of Pueblo, Col., son-in-law of Fall, who told the committee how he received the bonds from Sinclair and transmitted them to Fall, is expected to make it unnecessary for the government to go into details of the formation of the Continental, part of whose millions of dollars in profits invested in Liberty bonds reached Fall and the Republican National Committee.

More than 80 witnesses have been summoned for the trial. Two cabinet officers, Secretaries Wilbur and Work, and two former cabinet officers, Edwin Denby and Harry M. Daugherty, have been subpoenaed. Another prominent witness is former Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Roosevelt.

An indication that the defense would go into the national defense angle of the oil leases, was seen in the fact that Secretary Wilbur was told to bring documents concerning the navy council meetings.

FALL ON HEALTH TRIP TO PASADENA

Pasdena, Cal., April 7—Bowed with sickness and sorrow, Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, arrived late today at Las Encinas Sanitarium, Pasadena. With him were his wife and daughter, Mrs. B. F. Elliott, and his secretary, H. L. Glum.

"I am stronger than I was a few weeks ago, but I am very tired," Fall said. He walked slowly from the Southern Pacific train at Alhambra to board a waiting automobile which carried him to Pasadena. "I will have nothing to say regarding my recent deposition in El Paso. This is a matter that should be revealed only in the courtroom."

The central figure in the oil scandal had the old time fighting gleam in his eye as he walked the few steps to his car. Almost imperceptibly his shoulders straightened as a battery of cameras clicked at him. He was supported on either side by his wife and daughter.

The party came here from Fall's home at El Paso.

GALLAGHER TO FIGHT CHARGE OF COLLINS

Jazz Band Leader Denies He Induced Complainant's Wife to Drink

PROTESTS $25,000 SUIT

"Too Ridiculous for Words," His Comment to Boston Sunday Advertiser

Between his duties of broadcasting and directing a jazz band, "Jimmie" Gallagher is quite a busy man in Boston's musical world, but he stopped long enough last night to discuss the damage suit of $25,000, which was brought against him by William F. Collins of Lynn.

And the nationally known radio broadcaster declared that he is going to fight the charges made by Collins that he is responsible for Mrs. Collins becoming intoxicated on the night of December 7 last, and will see the whole thing through, for he is in no mood to give up 25 cents, much less $25,000.

Concurring in every statement made by Gallagher was C. Roy Carlson, musical running mate of the well known broadcaster, who is also named as a co-defendant by the Lynn husband.

In the declaration filed in Suffolk Superior Court, Collins charges Gallagher and Carlson with having induced his wife to become intoxicated, as well as subjecting her to wicked treatment.

The suit is one out of the ordinary in that it is based on a section of the federal law that gives the right to sue for damages caused by one person making another intoxicated.

"Why, it's almost too ridiculous for words, the whole affair," began Gallagher, "and were it not for the generally erroneous impression that might be formed in the minds of many of my friends, I would not say a word at this juncture.

"At the proper time and in the proper place, which will be in an open court room, I will not only answer these charges, but throw some light on the reason why this preposterous charge has been made against Carlson and myself. This suit is but the sequel of another attempt to reach me where it hurts most, in the region of the pocketbook. Of course, that phase of the story will have its airing in the courts. And when it's all over 'Jimmie' Gallagher will still be found 'hanging on.'"

Mr. Gallagher announced that now the suit has been filed he will, under no circumstances, allow the matter to be dropped until his good name before his public in New England and other sections of the Atlantic seaboard has been vindicated. Acting as counsel for the well-known broadcaster is Atty. Joseph P. Mulhern, who is anxious that the trial be held at an early date.

Despite the fact that "Jimmie" has the stellar role in a damage suit, he did his turn last night before the "Mike" and broadcasted as if he had not a care or damage suit on his mind.

Capt. Mackie Reads Books While on Cross Country Hops

Has Been Pilot, Parachute Jumper and Also Wing Walker

One Time, Unwittingly, He Aided Murderer of Five Men to Escape Into Mexico

By FRANKLIN P. COLLIER, Jr.,

CAPT. RICHARD W. MACKIE, pilot for the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., on the Boston-New York mail run, has flown 3000 hours and is so much at home along the airways that he sometimes reads a book or magazine on daylight cross country hops.

Capt. Mackie

"With a compass, altimeter, and bank indicator on the dashboard in front of me it is not necessary to look out the side of the cockpit very often while flying at a safe altitude," he said. "Something has to be done to pass the time in the air, and I have found reading as good a diversion as any when not studying fields for possible forced landings."

In 1917 Capt. Mackie was the youngest pilot in the U. S. Air Service when made flight sergeant at the age of 18. He is one of the inventors of the "Voice of the Sky" that is used to broadcast musical programs and vocal messages from airplanes to the ground.

It would be hard to find duplicates of many of Capt. Mackie's adventures, which include practically everything that can happen to pilots, parachutes jumpers and wing walkers.

"My first parachute jump was the means of saving my life," he said. "At Brooks Field, San Antonio, Texas, in 1917, three of us were taking a ride in a kite balloon attached to a truck when the cable broke.

"The balloon shot into the air. We soon were at an altitude of 12,000 feet, and only two of us had parachutes. The balloon pilot opened the valve in the gas bag at this point to prevent the balloon bursting in the lower atmospheric pressure.

"We proceeded to descend, and as the valve stayed open our downward speed constantly increased until we were falling 40 miles an hour when a few feet off the ground.

Caught in Balloon

"A mesquite tree checked our speed, but we went through this and hit the ground with such force that everyone was thrown out of the basket. Relieved of this load, the balloon started to rise again, and I discovered that the strage of my parachute were attached to the basket rigging. I dangled there, being dragged through the treetops as I struggled to free myself.

"Suddenly it occurred to me that it would not be safe to jump until the balloon had an altitude of at least 700 feet. The valve still was open and the crumpling gas bag soon would fall to the ground. When I thought it was up 200 feet I finished untangling myself and jumped, landing safely.

"I had to make five other parachute jumps in Texas, when local men who had volunteered to give the advertised exhibitions at aerial circuses lost their nerve. The circumstances forcing me to make the last of these jumps was amusing. We always took up a collection for the volunteer parachute jumper, and on this occasion $15 had been contributed in nickels and dimes.

"We offered to refund the money when the man refused to jump, and everybody put in claims for dollars and halves. It would have taken $200 to satisfy all the demands. The only way we could keep out of bankruptcy was to provide a parachute jump. It was after dark and an imaginary jump could have been seen just as well by the crowd, but I made a real jump.

Helped Criminal Escape

"Settling to the ground was not much fun. Everything was black. I couldn't tell where I was heading or how near I was getting to term firma until I felt myself hit the ground.

"It has been my luck unwittingly to enable both a murderer and an attempted murderer to make their escapes by airplane. The murderer had killed five men and escaped from a death cell. He seemed innocent enough when he hired me to fly him from Fort Arthur, Texas, to Laredo, Mexico.

"Although unbeknown to me every police officer in Texas was looking for us and while we made several stops en route, we were not apprehended. This probably was fortunate, considering the desperate nature of my passenger. He was recaptured, sentenced to be electrocuted, and finally was pardoned.

"The attempted murderess had emptied a revolver into her husband and kidnaped her baby, put under the father's custody by a court decree. Her sweetheart hired me to fly from Houston to Lake Charles, La., and bring back his 'sister and her baby.'

"This trip didn't seem to involve anything unusual. I was surprised on a later visit to Lake Charles to learn that the man's 'sister' had been out on $3000 bonds and by means of her trip with me had been able to escape to Mexico. She never was caught. The husband recovered.

One Trip Cancelled

"After these two experiences I became suspicious when a bank teller wanted to hire my ship to fly to Mexico with his wife, whom he planned to kidnap from her parents who were keeping her from him. A conference with the officers of the bank revealed that they knew nothing of his contemplated trip, and investigation found the teller in the vaults filling his satchel with bills. We did not make that hop.

"My trip with the gun lady was followed by an amusing incident. I had gone home after landing and was taking a bath when an ambulance driver burst into the house and wanted to take me to the hospital for first aid treatment. "We heard your plane crashed into a house and that you were badly hurt," he said.

"I had circled low over the city for several minutes before landing and the report started that I had crashed. Five ambulances had been rushing about looking for the wreck.

Capt. R. W. Mackie was born at West Branch, Mich. in 1898. He enlisted at Fort Lawton, near Seattle, going from there to Rockwell Field, San Diego, Cal., and the Princeton ground school. In 1918 he was rated the best cadet in his class at Souther Field, Ga.

Becomes an Inventor

Commissioned, he was sent to the instructors' school at Brooks Field. In 1919 he was one of two instructors chosen at Kelly Field for pilot-finf recruiting plane over Texas. He resigned in August, 1919, after three and a half years of active service.

In October, 1919, he flew a commercial advertising plane. From 1920 to 1924 he barnstormed over the West, carrying 7300 passengers without injury, during this period he did wing walking at aerial circuses, and on one occasion deliberately landed a plane upside down for the benefit of the spectators.

The next two years he did aerial photography in Texas. In 1926 he was the principal organizer of the Texas National Guard Air Service, selecting all the pilots for this squadron and acting as flight commander for two years.

In 1928 he was made aviation editor of the Houston Chronicle. In 1926 he received patents for the plane speaker, which has been used in advertising campaigns all over the country. The forming of the Plane-Speaker Corporation, now located in New York, and his experiments with other inventions caused him temporarily to cease active flying at this time.

He was unable to stay grounded long, and this past winter came to Boston to accept the position as pilot for Colonial Air Transport, Inc.

"My reason for this move was the steady growth of aerial transportation, rivalling the early history of the railroads and offering greater possibilities of growth," he said,

Two-Tube East Boston Traffic Tunnel Recommended

HANOVER ST. TO CENTRAL SQ. IS PLAN OFFERED

Selection of Exact Location to Be Left to Specially Appointed Commission

COST ABOUT $15,000,000

Report Will Suggest the Entire Financing of the Project by the Commonwealth

A TWO-TUBE traffic tunnel between Boston proper and East Boston, to cost approximately $15,000,000, will be recommended by the sub-committee of the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs which has been considering the question in executive sessions the past week. The report will be made to the House of Representatives tomorrow or Tuesday.

Rep. Gilman

The plans as outlined by House Chairman George A. Gilman provide for a tunnel from the foot of Hanover st., Boston, to Central sq., East Boston, that being the narrowest section of the harbor. Selection of exact location, however, will be left to a special tunnel commission to be recommended for appointment by the Governor.

Each tube will be 20 feet in width. Whether there should be a free walk provided for pedestrians would be left to the judgment of the special commission.

The opinion of the members of the sub-committee is that tolls should be fixed at 25 cents for pleasure cars, 50 cents for light trucks and 75 cents for heavy trucks and buses. Passengers would ride free.

The report will recommend entire financing of the project by the state, no assessment to be made for benefits on the city of Boston or neighboring cities or towns. The committee estimates it will require four years to construct the tunnel.

"Our estimate of cost is based on the figures we obtained in our inspection of the Holland tunnel," said Representative Gilman. "This cost about $48,000,000, but our tunnel would be less than half as long. Besides, they were compelled to conduct many very costly experiments; we will be able to avoid that expense through profiting by their experiments.

"We make our estimate of the time required to complete the job in the same way. The Holland tunnel took seven years; we ought to be able to finish ours within the four-year period.

"Our recommendation will be for a special tunnel commission of only three members. This is also on the advice of the New York officials with the added counsel that the commission should consist of two business men and a lawyer. They advised against including an engineer on the commission, but advised employment of the best engineers to be had."

The sub-committee is composed of Senators Charles C. Warren of Arlington and Erland F. Fish of Brookline; Reps. George A. Gilman and William H. Hearn of Boston and Charles H. Holmes of Erving.

TRIO TO FACE TRIAL FOR LIFE

Fall River, April 7—Three murder trials are scheduled for this month, the first of which will begin in New Bedford Monday morning before Judge Harold P. Williams of Superior Court.

Antonio da Silva, mill operative, who is alleged to have slain Theodore R. Gibbons and then carted his body to a lonely farm in Swansea, will be tried first. Da Silva was jointly indicted with Mrs. Gertrude F. Gibbons, the victim's wife, she being acquitted last November.

Ernest Pelletier, held for the shooting of his brother, Napoleon Pelletier, will be the second to be tried. Napoleon Pelletier was slain last August while sitting on the veranda of his home on East Main st., this city.

The third defendant is Elmer K. Pierce, Seekonk farmer, indicted for the murder of Dalphis J. Pelletier of Queen st., this city, while he was in company with his fiancee, Miss Thelma Berard, in her parents' home in East Swansea last October.

MISS O'HEARN IS GUEST OF HONOR

Miss Catherine O'Hearn of Milton, whose engagement to John F. Fitzgerald, Jr., was announced recently, was the central figure at a luncheon and bridge whist given yesterday in her honor by Miss Agnes Fitzgerald, sister of the bridegroom-to-be. The affair was at the home of John F. Fitzgerald, former mayor of Boston, 39 Welles ave., Dorchester.

The sun room was beautifully decorated with Easter flowers, potted plants and ferns. Miss O'Hearn was the recipient of good wishes on her wedding, which is to take place on Saturday, April 28, at St. Ambrose Church, Dorchester.

DEPEW BURIED IN BOYHOOD VILLAGE

church on the avenue. Chauncey Depew's funeral was so severely simple as almost to seem flat and colorless, had one not known the man.

He seemed rich enough in death to be able to need no deep sounding brasses or slow-moving bands; no sable trapped horses, with nodding jet black plumes and no tedious eulogies or biographical whitewash from the pulpit or the press. Himself a symbol of American life and American progress for more than two generations, Chauncey Depew needed nothing at his commitment rituals to suggest a symbol for him.

And so, with the last notes of the holy litanies, the final pianissimo of the sweet voiced choir boys and the fading chants of the white-robed clerics, the shuffling of highly polished boots of moneyed men and distinguished lawyers, educators, officials and other leaders, as they moved along the wide aisles of St. Thomas' nave, the part of Chauncey Depew that was patrician seemed to have closed beyond recall. Then came the democratic side, the 47-mile procession to Peekskill. Thousands of humbler folk watched the passage.

From the city line where New York's motorcycle escort left the seven automobiles and the hearse, through the Westchester townships and hamlets, there was growing evidence of the love inspired by the long life of Chauncey M. Depew.

As the procession neared Peekskill it was as though the clock hands had been reversed; that the man who had grown to be so old and so distinguished was actually traveling not to his eternal sleep on the hill, but toward boyhood and his native farm, there to be drawn again to the arms of his neighbors in a most informal and affectionate manner; there to live, laugh and play in the hazy sunlight of an endless spring day; there to know no turmoil and no pain.

NOTABLE PALL BEARERS

The pall bearers: Frederick W. Vanderbilt, William K. Vanderbilt, Patrick E. Crowley, Nicholas Murray Butler, Edward L. Rossiter, Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, Frank K. Sturgis, George F. Baker, Frank Egerton Webb, Newcomb Carlton, Fred W. Sargent, Morgan J. O'Brien, Auston G. Fox, Jackson E. Reynolds, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., William Cooper Procter, Bertram Cutler; Charles H. Sabin, Charles B. Seger, Henry R. Anderson, Frederick W. Otte, Elihu Root, James A. O'Gorman, Ogden Mills, Myron C. Taylor, John S. Fisher, James J. Walker, Robert F. Wagner, Dr. James Rowlan Angell, Alfred H. Harris, Edward S. Harkness and Warren S. Hayden.

HUB GOOD WILL TOURISTS LAND TODAY IN N. Y.

Leaders See Vast Benefit Deriving From Central American Cruise

By BERT FORD

On Board SS. Calamares, April 7 (Via Tropical Radio)—The good will expedition from Boston Chamber of Commerce, which toured the West Indies and Central America, will arrive in New York at 10 a. m. Easter Sunday.

The Calamares, flagship of the United Fruit Co.'s white fleet, will dock at pier 15, East river.

Members of the party will leave for Boston on an early afternoon train. Some plan to leave the train at Providence and motor to their homes.

The harbingers of good will are returning with a deeper understanding of our neighbors in the tropics. The men of the party got a valuable close-up of business and economic conditions. Bonds of friendship were strengthened.

The president of the Panama Chamber of Commerce made an appeal for closer and more extensive trade relations. He said the Republic of Panama was honored to welcome the delegation of Boston business men and that its plans for development of Panama required financial support from business interests in the United States.

VISIT SEVEN PORTS

We sailed from Boston March 17. The cruise covered 5166 miles and lasted 22 days. We visited seven important ports, Havana, going and returning; Port Antonio and Kingston in Jamaica; Cristobal, Colon and Panama City, Canal Zone, and Fort Limon and plantations and mountain communities 75 miles inland in Costa Rica.

We left Havana at 1 a. m. Thursday. The 1106-mile run to New York has been marked by fine weather and favorable seas. Swinging northward with the Gulf Stream, the Calamares reeled out 420 miles between Thursday and Friday noon.

William J. Fortune, vice-president of National Shawmut Bank, official leader of the party, and J. Paul Foster, cruise manager and personal representative of Boston Chamber of Commerce, were responsible in a large measure for the success of the good will tour. Here is what they have to say of it:

"The good will cruise has been a genuine success," said Mr. Foster. "Everywhere the Boston party was made welcome and a real effort made by the local business men to give opportunity for interchange of views and establish personal contacts. Undoubtedly everyone who took the trip understands better than before the business conditions in Central America and Cuba and appreciates the value of their potential markets for New England.

"As for pleasure, Capt. H. Spencer and his associates saw to it that every comfort possible was provided and care taken for the enjoyment for every one of the party. The representatives of the United Fruit Company have extended to the party courtesies which made the trip thoroughly enjoyed by everyone."

MARKET IS THERE

"The good will trip of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was a success," Mr. Fortune declared. "It has been extremely beneficial from the pleasure and educational points of view. It is yet too early to accurately judge the commercial advantages gained from our contact with the many representative business men of each country visited.

"Their cordial reception, however, and obvious live interests in the subjects discussed have all been distinctly encouraging.

"In these countries, still in the early stages of development, by comparison with our own, one fact particularly impressed itself upon us. It was that these Southern neighbors, many of whom have yet to wear their first pair of shoes or stockings, represent an enormous potential market for the many products of New England manufacture."

8 HARVARD MEN IN NAVY FOR A WEEK

Eight Harvard students became Jack Tars yesterday when they sailed on the U. S. S. Utah for a week's boarding on the billows between here and Rockland, Me.

They are members of the Harvard Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps and their putting to sea is part of their practical work in a course on naval science. When graduated two years hence they will be commissioned ensigns in the naval reserve provided they have passed their naval science course.

While the Utah, which recently returned to northern waters, is undergoing standardization tests, the students will experience the practical work of standing watch, take turns in the engine room and pay especial attention to gunnery.

Comdr. Grady, in charge of the naval R. O. T. C. work at Harvard, planned the trip during Easter vacation so as not to interfere with studies.

The students are: Lionel Peabody Marks, James T. Baldwin, Arthur P. Butler, Harold F. Cross, Herbert R. Wands, Jr., Joseph P. Moody, Malcolm F. Stewart and Richard Warren.

FOUR POWERS TO DISCUSS TREATY

Washington, April 7 (AP)—France and the United States agreed today to submit immediately their diplomatic correspondence on the proposal for a multi-lateral treaty renouncing war to Great Britain, Germany, Italy and Japan.

Foreign Minister Briand's last note, in which he tentatively accepted Secretary Kellogg's proposal for submission of the note to the other powers, contained various suggestions. Mr. Kellogg has been endeavoring to determine whether they were in effect reservations.

Sails on San Benito

William A. MacKenzie, an engineer, sailed yesterday noon on the United Fruit liner San Benito, Capt. D. M. Macdonald, for Cuba. Mr. MacKenzie will go to Puerto Castilla.

At its evening session another Easter program will be broadcast from the Church of the Unity, where Rev. Charles A. Wing is to preach. The Unitarian service will open at 7:30.

LISTENING IN

By the Radio Editor

RADIO today offers one of its favorite artists in an unusual role. Graham McNamee, "the eye of the mike," will sing as a soloist in Gounod's "Redemption" from WEEI at 8 o'clock. Singing a solo is not a new thing for Mr. McNamee but it is a year since he has appeared in public.

A GENUINE lord who is a famous playwright as well, will talk to the listeners in the Collier hour tonight at 8:15 from WBZ-WBZA. He is Lord Dunsany who will be heard with Courtney Riley Cooper as guest artist.

• • •

ANOTHER feature of the Collier hour tonight will be a vivid presentment of the "Adventures of Buffalo Bill," shooting, swift riding, Injuns and all. If it is done as well as last week's station, every listeners hair is in a fair way to stand on end.

MANY listeners, among them the Radio Editor, will miss the popular La Touraine concerts which come regularly on the air Sunday nights at 7:30 o'clock from WEZ and WEEI ladies last week. Arthur Pershore, lecturer, will be heard in their place tonight, talking on "Exploration in Plant Life."

• • •

THE Columbia Chain broadcasting through WNAC will offer attractive Easter music today. In the symphonic hour at 3 o'clock, an orchestra and chorus of mixed voices will render "Now Ye Are Sorrowful" by Brahms and "Christ Triumphant" by Pietro A. Yon. The Cathedral hour at 4 o'clock will have its name, presenting favorite music of the great cathedrals of the world.

• • •

LA PALINA, the vivacious young senorita, will sing Spanish airs tonight at 9:30 o'clock instead of Monday from WNAC. The setting of the broadcast is laid in Havana in a picturesque Latin cabaret.

• • •

ATTENTION should be called to the General Motors program tonight at 9:45 o'clock from WEEI presenting the popular songs of opera. Many well known selections will be given. Those who appreciate music will recognize and be pleased with all of them.

MAINE PLANS FULL SURVEY OF RESOURCES

National Leaders and Prominent Men of State Meet at Bangor, May 18-19

An economic conference to be held in Bangor, Me., on May 18 and 19, at which the industry, finance, agriculture and commerce of the country will be represented, has been called.

Men of national prominence will consult with 100 of the leading citizens of Maine relative to the forthcoming survey of that state, it was announced by Clarence C. Stetson, of Bangor. Mr. Stetson is chairman of the Maine Development Commission under whose auspices the conference has been arranged.

The general purpose of this conference, as set forth by Mr. Stetson, is to appraise the citizens of the state of the importance of a thorough stock-taking of Maine's assets and resources.

The machinery of a survey of such importance as Maine proposes will be explained in detail at the conference. Improvement of working relations between banks and the farmers; the problem of electrification of rural districts; reforestation development; recreation, merchandising and marketing methods and expansion of fisheries and industries will be among the problems to be discussed.

Maine is the first state in the Union, it is pointed out, to initiate a complete survey of its resources. This survey to provide a basis upon which the development commission proposes to build a general program of expansion for the state. Immediate arrangements for the conference or the use funds of the survey committee of the commission, of which Charles Aud of Auburn is chairman.

Among the experts who will confer with the Maine leaders are: Julius H. Barnes, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; L. R. Schoenmann of Lansing, director of the bureau of land economic survey of the Michigan conservation department; Merwin K. Hart of Utica, manufacturer and the founder of the New York State industrial survey commission; John S. Lawrence of Boston, president of the New England Council, and Col. C. H. Birdseye of the Department of the Interior, Washington.

The opening conference will be followed by a dinner at which Mr. Barnes will be the principal speaker. The business session will be resumed the following morning and will close with a luncheon at noon charged with the collection and distribution of information upon the natural resources of the State. It is planned by a State appropriation of $ 4,000 a year for two years, the period intervening between sessions of the Legislature.

The Maine Development Commission under whose auspices the State survey has been begun, was created by the Legislature in 1927.

It is composed of the secretary of state, the commissioners of agriculture, forestry, labor and inland fish and game, and the following civilian members: John E. Abbott, North Berwick, master of the State Grange; Charles Aud of Auburn, shoe manufacturer; Lewis S. Bean, Presque Isle potato shipper; Hiram W. Ricker, South Poland hotel man; Clarence C. Stetson of Bangor, lumber man, and George F. West of Portland, engaged in insurance and public utilities. These members are appointed by the governor for a term of three years.

CITIES TO BENEFIT BY PORTLAND BOATS

Officials of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., have announced that freight and passenger service between Boston and Portland will be continued during the summer months.

The decision is considered of great important to business men of Massachusetts and those of Portland, boothbay and surrounding cities and towns.

Service will begin on June 25 and will be operated daily.

EXHIBIT TO SHOW CHEFS' ARTISTRY

In an endeavor to revive interest in the epicurean art, the fourth annual exposition of the New England Hotel Men's Association, opening at Mechanics building tomorrow at 10 a. m., will present the biggest display of the culinary art ever arranged in the east.

The culinary division of the exposition, which will be thrown open to the public on Tuesday, will represent artistry from the kitchens of many of Boston's best hotels.

The exhibits, arranged under the direction of Thomas F. Jones of the Harvard Club, will be given prominent display in the show, which will continue through Friday, April 13.

The lighthouse motif, always popular with chefs, will be seen. Other subjects include boats, wedding towers and reproductions of architecture.

The exhibits of hotel equipment, foods and accessories show the latest developments for efficiency, sanitation and convenience to guests and patrons.

Hotel week in Boston will be formally ushered in with the complimentary luncheon to be tendered by Ellsworth M. Statler at his Boston hotel tomorrow at 1 p. m.

SHIPS WAIT TRIP TO FROZEN NORTH

Farquhar Line steamers have undergone their annual overhaul, inspection and survey and all are ready for the season's traffic of passengers, mails and freights.

The express steamer Farnorth resumed service yesterday from Halifax to St. Pierre, Miq., and St. John's Nfld.

The Farnorth has been thoroughly reconditioned and has recently added to her schedule as port of call—St. Pierre, Miquelon.

During the last two years the Farnsworth has steamed approximately 100,000 nautical miles, or a distance of about four times around the world. She has accommodations for 150 first and second class passengers in cabins with single beds, twin beds or double beds.

The sailings of the Farquhar steamers in each South American port at Boston, Halifax to St. John's and other ports of the coast of Newfoundland are of Pacific Western.

About the middle of April the Sambro and Skipper will make their way into the ice limited fields on the west and east coasts of Newfoundland, or as soon as the ice will permit.

SAILING CHANGE TO WEST COAST MADE

Panama Pacific line steamers will leave New York for California ports on a fortnightly schedule instead of every three weeks, as at present, it was announced by officials of the company here yesterday.

NEW ENGLAND'S P
are NEW ENGLAND

The history of New England's far-reaching network of power and public utility companies is interwoven with the rapid development of New England's industrial and economical importance and to a surprisingly great extent is the cause of that development.

The activities of public utility companies are so intimately related to the welfare of the community that they affect your very manner of living, your enjoyment of the comforts of modern American life.

HOW PUBLIC UTILITIES A

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial

What about the public utilities?

Their importance is conceded on every side.

We devoted a special column to the public utilities on May 29, 1927, pointing out the industrial necessity of reliable power at fair prices. Light and power, you know, are twins.

June 23 we pointed out that "no better illustration of the growth of the group of public utilities furnishing light and power to our nation can be offered than that made known in figures for the average yearly bill for residential lighting just furnished me from Washington.

"For the year ended March, 1926, the average residence use was 365 kilowatt hours and for the year ended March, 1927, the average residence use was 400 kilowatt hours." These figures indicate the growing appreciation of the value and convenience of electricity for providing more light, better light and a performance of useful domestic services.

The average electric light bill in New England, by the way, was $30.04, interpreted by some as meaning we burn more lights in this part of the country than in others, New York, the "gay lights of Broadway" section, showing an average bill of but $29.36.

What industry has the largest expansion program for 1928? The public utilities, with an expenditure of a billion dollars planned.

The Savings Banks of New England are steadily adding to their holdings of the securities of gas, electric and water companies. The figures for Massachusetts may be taken as indicative of the increase in this respect.

Investments in this category, according to figures I have at hand, were $16,665,000 on Oct. 31, 1925.

On Oct. 30, 1926, they were $37,606,000.

They had grown on Oct. 31, 1927, $105,831,000.

It will thus be seen that the savings banks in the Bay State in two years have added over $89,000,000 to their holdings of public utility issues.

These figures show that the savings of New England and the stability of its public utility companies are interwoven.

Customer ownership, an idea which originated in Cambridge, has spread like wildfire the past few years, and today many of the public utilities in the more largely

THE BASES FOR CO-OPERATION B

1. A comparison of today's prices for light, heat and power with the prices of 10, 20 and 30 years ago reveals the fact that the luxuries of yesterday are enjoyed today as almost matter-of-course necessities.
2. This reduction of cost has been accomplished despite the constantly rising costs of re-equipment made necessary to keep pace with new inventions. The operation of such huge projects ties up tremendous funds for long periods.
3. The unhampered development of public utilities is absolutely necessary to maintain New England's Industrial Supremacy. Unexpected developments may change the whole industrial tone of a community. The right of utility companies to anticipate the unexpected must be acknowledged as sound business. This can only be done by permitting a reasonable accumulation of reserve funds.
4. The trend of these companies toward unification is the natural result of better management, the need for eliminating duplication of effort and meeting the demand for lower prices that are made possible by the economies resulting from co-operation. This unification is of vital importance to every New Englander because abundant power facilities are the life savers of old industries and the attraction of new ones.
5. Public utilities are not, as is popularly supposed, controlled by few

POWER WAS THE FOUNDATION OF NEW ENGLAND'S INDUSTRIAL S

UBLIC UTILITIES 'S PUBLIC SERVANTS

To a great extent, the success of these organizations is measured by the confidence you repose in them and your appreciation of the services they perform. The torch of progress must be held aloft by the hands of the server and the served.

To this end the leading public utility companies of New England have listed their names on these pages that you may better understand who they are, where they are and what they are trying to do.

RE SERVING NEW ENGLAND

Editor of the Boston Sunday Advertiser

populated centres boast a large proportion of customer stockholders.

I do not think a single instance can be cited where a customer stockholder has suffered loss of principal or lowering or cessation of dividends. On the contrary, there have been numerous instances of stock dividends, extras and dividend increases in the public utility field.

These have been paid largely through co-operation between consumer and producer.

Finally there are two special pointers which show the latest trends in the public utilities field.

One is consolidation, which adds to effectiveness, if properly used. At the close of the latest reported 12 months there were 4409 light and power systems in the United States, compared with 6355 in the previous year. A part of this diminution can be accounted for by the reduction in the number of municipal lighting plants.

Complete statistics showing the entire number of new customers served by the Utility Companies of New England for 1927 are not available at this time, but premised upon the data at hand it is probable that the number is in excess of 200,000 and that about $50,000,000 of new money was spent to provide equipment for their service.

This money was provided, in general, by the class of investors who seek a safe and not a speculative investment.

IT HAS BEEN SAID THAT "GAS AND ELECTRICITY ARE USED BECAUSE THEY ARE CHEAP; THEY ARE CHEAP BECAUSE THEY ARE USED." THE MORE THEY ARE USED THE CHEAPER THEY WILL BECOME, AND THE MORE THEY ARE USED THE GREATER MUST BE THE SUPPLY OF NEW MONEY TO PROVIDE MANUFACTURING AND DISTRIBUTING FACILITIES.

MONEY WILL READILY FLOW TO THESE INDUSTRIES IN SUFFICIENT VOLUME TO MEET THEIR REQUIREMENTS SO LONG AS THEIR SECURITIES CONTINUE TO BE ATTRACTIVE TO THE INVESTOR THROUGH SAFETY AND THE FAIRNESS OF THE RETURN.

THIS MESSAGE is of interest to every user of Gas and Electricity in New England

TWEEN CONSUMER AND PRODUCER

stockholders. On the contrary, there are increasing numbers of working citizens who own stock in these companies and whose interests are entitled to protection.

6. Public utilities and public health, standards of living and commercial advancement are interwoven. The scientific resources and the leading technical minds of the world are at the command of public utilities.

7. Public utilities have a definite relation to employment and wages. The people employed by public utilities companies are themselves a sizable section of New England's labor. The development of public utilities has made possible better working conditions in all branches of labor and has encouraged higher wages by decreasing the cost of production.

8. As the power rates are reduced, so will the costs of production for the industries dependent upon power be reduced. In this way, power affects the price of manufactured commodities.

9. Power companies must meet the peak periods of a wide variety of industries at different times of the year. This necessitates frequent readjustments of charges to the consumer on a basis that will provide the lowest rate for him and yet will protect the servicing company from drastic loss.

10. The advantages to industry which accompany the use of electric power have been duplicated in the home through the use of electricity and gas to perform domestic services.

HOW TO PLANT HYACINTHS AND TULIPS TOLD

Iris, Adaptable to Many Soils, Enjoys Well Deserved Popularity

By EDWARD C. VICK, Farm and Garden Editor

WHEN tulips, hyacinths and narcissus have finished blooming in the garden, on no account cut off the foliage until it has dried up. To do otherwise means that, more than likely, there will be no bloom next year.

Bulbs may be carefully lifted after blooming and head is an out of the way place until the foliage ripens. They may be left there until autumn and replanted, or they may be taken up and stored in a cool place, after the foliage has ripened, until autumn planting time.

E. C. Vick

Where bulbs are planted on the lawn, the grass should not be cut until the foliage of the bulbs has turned yellow.

For best results bulbs should be dug, divided and transplanted every third or fourth year, always planting in dry weather.

AN ATTRACTIVE HOME enhanced by careful landscaping and the development of shrubs and plants.

When planting bulbs where they are to flower, remember that manure should never come in direct contact with bulbs of any kind. If manure is obtainable, mix some bone meal with it and work it into the soil under the bulbs before they are planted.

COVER LIGHTLY.

Cover this lightly with soil to avoid any possibility of the manure touching the bulbs. Old manure may be used as a mulch over the bulb bed after it is made, as a winter covering. The mulch should be applied after the ground has frozen. Bulbs properly planted and cared for are a permanent investment. They will live for years and multiply. Therefore take care of spring flowering bulbs when they have finished blooming.

THE bearded iris, which is commonly listed in catalogs as iris germanica or German iris, may not be our most popular perennial, but certainly it is one of our most popular, and no wonder.

No other flowering plant is more easily grown and adapted to such a wide range of soil or climatic conditions. Plant the rhizomes or "roots" almost on the surface of the soil, in the bed prepared for them in fall sun, where the drainage is good and little more attention need be given.

The plants should be dug and reset about every fourth year, as they multiply rapidly and soon become crowded. More and larger flowers will result if the plants are cultivated and watered as may be needed.

IRIS IS ADAPTABLE

Iris fit in nicely in many places in the garden in borders along walks or drives, along walls or in clumps and scattered among shrubbery. Iris are particularly appropriate along the banks of ponds or streams.

In spots where no other plants will grow, try iris, providing there is ample sun.

Plants purchased may be set as soon as the ground can be prepared. In dividing and transplanting in the garden, do this promptly after the plants have flowered. This permits the production of good root growth before winter, which will insure flowering the next season.

German iris, also called bearded iris, will be benefited by the use of a little hydrated lime, a handful and double quantity of bone meal, to the square yard. This should be spaded in and well mixed with the soil in the operation.

Set the plants on this and spread out the old roots to hold them in place. Barely cover the rhizomes and press the soil down so it will be firm. Water well after planting and repeat for a couple of times, then water sparingly until growth starts.

SOIL TESTS FOR IRIS

Bearded iris dislike manure, but thrive when lime is supplied in moderate amounts. Acid phosphate and potash is beneficial also.

Set the plants not closer than a foot apart. They soon increase and fill the space between.

The beardless or Japanese iris, as they are commonly called, are supposed not to like lime and generally have been treated in this manner, but experiments in my soil, New Jersey red clay, seem to indicate that possibly lime may not be injurious to them.

The experiment, however, has not been concluded and adverse results may be obtained. If anyone has used lime on beardless iris without injurious effect, please give particulars.

USES OF VARIETIES

The dwarf bearded iris form low mats of foliage from four to eight inches high. The flowers are borne on short stems in profusion early in the season. They are excellent for edgings and rock work. The culture is the same as for the large sorts.

For forming beds the dwarf iris planted in front with intermediate bearded iris back of them and the tall varieties back of the intermediate, gives a very pleasing effect in borders or beds.

The intermediate varieties, however, bloom after the dwarfs, and before the taller, later kinds. The three kinds prolong the blooming season, but the massed effect is not as it would be if the various kinds flowered at the same time.

VALUE TO POULTRYMEN OF PURE-BRED BIRDS STRESSED

Pedigreed Stock, Obtainable at Broiler Weight, Increase Profits---"Confinement" Method Saves Chicks From Disease-Bearing Flies

By PROF. FREDERIC H. STONEBURN
Poultry Editor

The cold storage situation still remains favorable to the poultry industry, as shown by the government report of the survey made March 1. According to that report, recently issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, storage holdings of table poultry were 26,000,000 pounds lower than on the same date in 1927.

As compared with the first of March last year there were in storage a smaller amount of eggs, the deficit amounting to more than 800,000 dozens.

In commenting upon the latter situation the authorities say: "The supply of case eggs in storage is less than at this time a year ago, despite that eggs are moving into storage earlier this year than last."

As the activities of buyers for the egg storage trade have a marked effect upon current quotations it is fair to assume that prices should stiffen materially as this movement gets under way.

Prof. Stoneburn

MONGREL BREEDING

While it is true that cross-bred chicks—produced by crossing the blood lines of two established breeds —are often of notable utility quality, strong, vigorous, productive, it is equally true that mongrel or "barnyard" fowls are mighty poor property as a rule.

There are uncounted thousands of such flocks in America today, yet each year we send to the market enough good standard bred males to head these flocks and produce offspring, which in the first generation will be immeasurably superior to the females in the flocks so mated.

HERE IS THE SAME PROPERTY before any work had been done on gardening. The simple design of the home, while pleasing, is far from displayed to best advantage.

Rayon Made of Peanuts, Varnish of Corn Cobs, By Aid of Science

RECENT developments indicate many added uses of agricultural products. Peanut hulls are reduced to a cellulose pulp which can be used in the manufacture of rayon. A new synthetic nicotine substance is now manufactured which will no doubt materially reduce the price of nicotine sulphate, used for spraying plants and trees.

New methods of sugar and syrup production have been found. Corn cobs are made to produce furfurral, a chemical which is largely used.

Lignin made from corn cobs and corn stalks is converted into varnishes, dyes and aromatic chemicals.—E. C. Vick.

With breeding stock, hatching eggs and baby chicks of outstanding quality in ample quantity to meet all needs and selling at a low price level, there is no apparent reason why any poultry keeper should devote his time and attention to scrub birds because he then fails to receive the returns which his efforts should bring him.

But if for financial reasons one cannot immediately replace his flock he can at least select the best individuals and mate them to choice males and so make great progress in a single season. Such males can be purchased at broiler weight at very low prices and can then be reared to maturity at relatively little cost.

CONFINEMENT METHOD.

The confinement method of rearing chicks has been tested in an experimental way in New Jersey and other states and is now being recommended for use in localities where worm infestation is general. Dr. J. J. Black, assistant poultry pathologist at the New Jersey Experiment Station, describes the procedure as below.

Under the confinement method the growing chicks are kept off the ground and under a fly-proof screen at all times. A small vestibule having two doors is used as the entrance to the brooder house, so that all flies entering the outer door may be killed before the inner door is opened.

In place of the usual outdoor run, each brood is provided with a sun porch entirely enclosed with fly-proof screen. For a brood of 250 to 300 chicks, this porch should have an area of 6 to 10 square feet, the floor being of concrete preferably and the screen covering at least 20 inches above the floor.

Prof. Stoneburn Tells How To Get Rid of Round Worms
In the Mar. 25 issue Prof. Stoneburn told Advertiser readers how to rid their flocks of round worms by using tobacco powder, rich in nicotine: "To the regular dry mash add one per cent of tobacco dust and you are safe." The active agent in the tobacco dust is the nicotine, and the dust should carry from one and one-half to two per cent nicotine."

HAROLD LLOYD ATHLETIC AND NO 'BABBITT'

By EDMOND E. BEHR
Universal Service

Los Angeles, April 7

HAROLD LLOYD denies that he is the "Babbitt" of the films. He also denies that he's an extremely moral person. But—and this is significant—he has no proof to bolster this second denial.

This comedian gets embarrassed when his morals are mentioned. But Harold has no cause for embarrassment. He dislikes being considered a "goody goody" fellow. In fact, I think that, secretly, he would rather like to give the impression he is somewhat of a roystering blade.

However, a chat with the hero of "Speedy," discourages an interviewer who might seek to picture Harold as a "devilish sort of chap" in movie life. How can a film star be considered anything but a "Babbitt" when:

He drinks perhaps three or four "courtesy" sips of liquor a year.

He smokes not more than half a dozen cigarettes annually?

He does not gamble.

He has never been named corespondent in a divorce suit.

He still loves his beautiful wife, Mildred Davis Lloyd.

LLOYD'S chief interest in life are: His family, which includes an only daughter, Mildred Gloria, aged four; his dogs, his "cars" and his flowers. But don't get the idea he is "dissified." Far from it. He is more athletic than 90 per cent of the men his age. And he enjoys a "night out" with the boys as much as the next one.

"I have no narrow ideas about drinking," he says, "if a man can handle it—remain healthy and use his ability to the fullest—there is no reason why he shouldn't drink. I believe. But how many can do that?"

Because of his athletic ambitions, Harold decided not to smoke, so he never took to cigarettes. But neither of these things—the liquor or cigarettes, he explains carefully —were avoided as the result of an ambition to be a "moral light."

"By the time I was grown and had begun to attain success in the films it was a habit to leave liquor and cigarettes alone," he says. "As for other temptations, especially those of an amorous nature—well, I guess I just wasn't born to be a ladies' man. No," chuckling, "I don't think I would ever have made good as one of the screen's great lovers. Somehow, I always felt sort of foolish when it came to whispering sweet nothings in a girl's ear. But don't think I'm a bashful guy."

AS Lloyd's fame grew, he found it necessary to be more careful than the ordinary man about the kind of parties he attended and the company he kept.

"It is not at all a case of being snobbish, as my friends know," Harold said. "But every screen star who values the opinion of the fans realizes that he or she must be extra careful regarding even the appearance of being 'fast.' For stars have been slowly but surely driven away many times from social gatherings that were perfectly harmless in themselves, but which were looked upon by the public as 'wild parties' because motion picture players attended.

"And you'd be surprised how traps are sometimes deliberately laid for successful screen artists. Once in New York I was in a hotel suite visiting with some men friends. In came two very beautiful girls who knew the other members of the party. There were plenty of champagne and after a while I began to feel uneasy.

"It seemed as the party was getting a little rough, though nothing actually wild had occurred. But I slipped away. And I learned that the affair had ended very messily.

"Two of my friends had been blackmailed out of a considerable sum by the ladies to avoid unwelcome publicity. I learned, also, that I was to have been the victim of their little game. My bunch had taken me away before the trap was sprung.

"You can't be too careful in this business if you value the public's opinion," he repeated.

But at that, Harold wants it plainly understood that he is no "Babbitt" of the type—even though he gets a bigger "kick" out of wild flowers than wild parties.

HAWAII WANTS FILM STUDIOS

Efforts are being made by the Hawaiian Chamber of Commerce to lure some of the picture producers to that famous beach at Waikaikai. The genuine attractions the documents include guarantees of plenty of extras and atmosphere.

Fleischer Studios has already bought a home in Honolulu, while Madeline Hurlock has announced her intention of doing three also. Albert Vaughn has made a location trip to the Hawaiian Islands and Georgia Hale has a similar journey in prospect.

It would seem that if the balmy land of ukeleles is challenging the famous California climate. Anyway, Hollywood has an ambitious rival.

LEO, M-G-M LION, TO TOUR THEATRES

Leo, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lion and company trademark, whose advertising non-stop flight last fall from California to New York was cut short when Martin Jonsen's plane was forced down in Arizona, will soon start on an extensive tour.

Equipped with a de luxe motor-driven circus cage he will leave California in the near future and make "personal appearances" in theatres throughout the country. Leo will be accompanied by a trainer said to be the youngest in his profession in the world.

Spring Fever

WALTHAM'S NEW THEATRE READY

WALTHAM'S handsome new theatre, the Embassy, will open tomorrow night in gala style, Mayor Henry T. Beale and other officials will attend. Mayor Beale will deliver a short address.

Prior to the opening of the show there will be an organ recital, during which patrons will be given full opportunity to examine the fine points of the new house.

The feature of the program is Reginald Denny in the screen comedy, "That's My Daddy." The comedy star is Jane La Verne, the noted child actress, who is something like a star herself.

The picture deals with the hero's adventures on the day he is to marry. He is arrested for speeding while on the way to the wedding, tells the policeman a hard luck story about his child in the hospital and is duly escorted to the hospital by the officer. Then the fun begins to seethe.

In addition there will be a Charlie Chase comedy, a newsreel and topics of the day. The vaudeville is headed by the Six Brown Brothers, featuring Tom Brown. The famous saxophone sextet has been a feature of the Ziegfeld "Follies." It furnishes comedy as well as music. There will also be four other big-time vaudeville acts.

Ray Shewarzton and his orchestra, well known to radio fans, will also furnish music, accompanied by the cathedral-toned organ.

The program will be changed Mondays and Thursdays. For the last half of the week "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" film comedy will be along with new vaudeville. After Monday the performances will start at 2 in the afternoon and 7 in the evening.

The Embassy is a large and attractive theatre with a modern atmosphere. Free parking space will be provided for the patrons.

STARS RALLY FOR BIG N. V. A. SHOW

DRAMATIC and musical show stars now playing in Boston will assist their vaudeville brothers and sisters in staging midnight frolics at a Friday afternoon Metropolitan and Keith-Albee Boston theaters for the benefit of the National Vaudeville Association. These shows will be duplicates, in the same acts appearing at both theaters during the performances.

A list of volunteer entertainers includes Joseph Santley, Ivy Sawyer and Raymond Hitchcock from "Just Fancy"; Walter Gilbert and Clara Joel from the St. James; George Olsen's Orchestra and John Philip Sousa from "Good News"; Jimmie Cooper from Waldron's Casino; Violet Heming, Robert Warwick, May Robson, William Courtleigh, Ruth Shepley, Fritzi Scherf and Charlie Ray from "Within the Law"; Ann Pennington; Louise Groody, Donald Brian, Stella Mayhew and Madeline Cameron from "Hit the Deck"; Billy Watson from the Howard; Nance O'Neil and Jim Morton from the F. F. Keith's Joe Marks and company from the Keith Albee Boston; Watson Sisters and Powers and Wallace from the Orpheum; thirty-three Florentine singers from Loew's State, and Danny Dugan from the Public Theatre.

Altogether there will be over 40 acts. The performances start at 11:30. Tickets are now on sale at all vaudeville theater box offices.

ALREADY IMITATING HIS STRENUOUS DAD

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., playing the male lead in the Tiffany-Stahl production, "Power," a Reginald Barker special, had rather a strenuous time during the filming of one of the scenes. He was dragged in the mud, fought by three street bullies, was thrown from a roof, punched in the eye, passed in a coal mine, kicked into a fire. He proved to be a chip off the old block.
